

National Digital Media Project Seeks Young Creatives

- get involved in behind-the-scenes design and production of a major digital project
- be part of a specially created work-related learning opportunity
- gain valuable industry insight, mentoring and support
- develop your own creative skills and employability

14-18 NOW are on the lookout for creative and curious 16 - 25 year olds to become part of a Co-Creators team for a nationwide project. If you have an interest in the creative and digital industries and love films and writing in whatever form, this project is for you.

This is a unique opportunity to be involved from the start to completion of a high profile multi-media project and to work alongside film-industry professionals, acclaimed writers and media specialists.

You would be one of 40 young people recruited from 6 UK areas with a chance to represent Nottingham and tell the stories of your generation along with those from 100 years ago to a national audience.

You would have two key tasks:

1. Input and help professionals develop exciting creative ideas and story for an ambitious and innovative digital project to be aired nationally in 2018.
2. Make your own personal project in response and receive accreditation and professional support throughout.

Between Autumn 2017 - Summer 2018 you would experience:

- Creative hot-house sessions with the professional team
- Training and mentoring workshops, including a free residential bootcamp to develop your creative skills
- Behind the scenes insight into the production processes of a globally renowned film company
- The professional use of social media, communication and marketing
- Live briefs and hands-on creative tasks
- Independent and collaborative working
- Development of your presentation and public speaking skills
- Support to promote yourself through a Digital CV and online portfolio for future work
- The chance to gain accreditation for your work
