

A one day conference at the University of Nottingham's School of English, showcasing the work produced by final year undergraduates and taught postgraduates.

On 7th April 2017, the School of English will celebrate the outstanding work produced by its students. The English Showcase is a light-hearted and informal introduction to the world of academia, where conferences are plentiful. We encourage all final year undergraduates and taught postgraduates to show off the work that they consider their greatest achievement or most exciting work in progress. If you want to share your achievements with your peers, apply now to take part – you can present as an individual or as part of a small team.

We welcome submissions for 10 minute presentations on all areas of English:

- English Literature
- English Language and Applied Linguistics
- Drama and Performance
- Medieval Languages and Literatures
- Creative Writing

No matter what area your work fits into, we want to hear from you!

Submissions may include (but are not limited to):

- An essay or dissertation extract
- A piece of drama
- A pre-existing presentation
- Works of creative writing (poetry, prose, reflections)
- Something else – surprise us!

Why participate?

- Prepare yourself for further study, where presentations and conferences are commonplace
- Gain experience in abstract writing and delivering presentations in a non-pressured, non-assessed environment
- Network with students and staff with interests both varied and similar to your own
- Boost your CV and make yourself all the more employable with experience in public speaking, delivering presentations and independent research
- Participate in an entertaining, educational and varied event
