

International Centre for Public and Social Policy

international centre for public and social policy

IcPSP aims to:

- be the leading centre for original, rigorous and significant public and social policy research in the UK;
- be recognised as a major UK and international forum for innovative ideas and research in the field of public and social policy;
- conduct research that has a positive social and economic impact through engagement with the academic, policy maker and practitioner communities and other publics;
- be recognised as a forum for excellent public and social policy research where high profile academics comment on current issues and identify future trends for the consumption of journalists, politicians and senior professionals across public and social policy;
- link with partners within the UK and around the world to enhance the international relevance of our and our partners' work;
- support the development of research fellows and research students to become the next generation of leading public and social policy researchers.
