Our students NEED YOU for 1 hour per week during term time to tutor online

The Access Project works with high-potential students from disadvantaged backgrounds, providing in-school support and personalised tuition to help them gain access to high tariff universities. We are working in the East Midlands, supporting a school in Nottinghamshire where we are looking for volunteers from Nottingham to tutor a student online after school whether that be from the comfort of your desk or in a public place. Once a term the students will have the opportunity to meet up with their matched tutor. We fully support our tutors by providing full training, high-tech equipment and an extensive bank of resources and a staff member on hand to offer advice and guidance.

“The Access Project is a great way for students from our local community to realise their full potential. The commitment from businesses will make a massive difference to the students involved and is a great way for us all as business leaders to support our local schools and wider community.” Martin Rigley, CEO of Lindhurst Engineering

“The Access Project students make more academic progress than their peers

At GCSE, tutored students made an average of a third of a grade more progress than their peers in their tutored subject.

The more tutorials they attend, the bigger the impact. Students who attended more than 20 tutorials in Year 11 made half a grade more progress than their peers.

84% of senior managers said they would look favourably on a candidate for promotion who had volunteered with us.

94% of tutors agree that The Access Project is an excellent place to volunteer.

“Tutoring really is the highlight of my week - it's such a simple concept which can really make the world of difference to tutors and students alike!” Jane Overton, Graduate Transport Planner, Atkins

“Having tutors who really believe in you - that's invaluable. It's that support and inspiration at really make the difference” Cyan, University of Oxford alumna

Register your interest to volunteering@theaccessproject.org.uk