Volunteering opportunity
This new role will involve speaking to a group of postgraduate research students in the School of Medicine about career opportunities in broadcasting, journalism and science writing. The primary aim of the event is to explore a range of careers that are open to research graduates with a background in Medicine or Science.

Who will suit this opportunity?
This opportunity would suit alumni who:

- have a background in Medicine or Science, though not essential
- have completed a doctoral level research degree (PhD, DPhil, DEng)
- work as a television or radio broadcaster (or have previously worked in broadcasting)

Date, time and expected number of volunteering hours
The event is being held on:
Date: Tuesday, 5th June 2018
Time: 10:00 – 14:00 (exact timings to be confirmed – volunteer required for 1.5 hours only)
Expected number of volunteering hours: 1.5 hours (to include a presentation, Q&A with students and lunch) Volunteers are welcome to stay for the entire session, or leave after the Q&A.

The Role
- You will give a 20-30 minute presentation to current research students on your career journey from Medicine/Science to broadcasting, journalism or science writing.
- You will also explain to students how they can prepare for, and gain access to, positions in these sectors.
- After your presentation, you and the other speakers in attendance will take part in a short Q&A with students.

Type of audience role will benefit
Research students registered on PhD, DM, MPhil or MRes degree programmes in the School of Medicine (full/part-time).

Budget
Travel expenses and parking permits will be provided.

Recruitment process
Please complete an application form no later than Friday 20th April. A member of the Team will then be in touch to discuss your application in more detail.
