Volunteering opportunity
We are looking for enthusiastic alumni to inspire students at our annual Where are they now? Natural Sciences event. We’d love for you to share your career story and pass on your top career tips. This volunteer opportunity will provide students with an opportunity to identify how their career path could take shape. You will be asked to talk for 5-10 mins about your personal experience of the world of work and then take part in an audience Q&A;

Things to consider in preparation for your talk:
- What made you choose your degree
- Your experience of the graduate recruitment process – good and bad!
- A typical day-in-the-life of your role
- What you enjoy about your role, organisation and sector
- Any tips you have for students looking to do something similar with their career
- The skills and experience you’ve taken from your degree and how you’ve applied these in the workplace

Who will suit this opportunity?
We are looking for alumni at all levels for this opportunity. We are looking for people who have graduated within the last ten years, who have studied Natural Sciences, and who have progressed into any career including non-science careers. If you would like the opportunity to practice your public speaking skills whilst making a positive impact on the lives of students – this opportunity could be for you!

When does the opportunity take place?
Date: Saturday 10 February 2018
Time: 2-5pm
Expected number of volunteering hours: 3 hours (plus preparation and travel time)

Who will benefit from your contribution?
This event is aimed at all current Natural Sciences students and alumni.

Recruitment process
Please fill out an application form and a member of the team will be in touch to discuss the opportunity further.
