Pre-conference workshop

The Media in Context Project: What We Learned about Voters, Parties and Media from GE2017

Friday 8 September
10.30-12.30
Lenton Grove A22

The snap election called by Theresa May presents a further opportunity to assess and understand the role of media in British politics at a time when a fractured media system is being held at least partly responsible for presenting misleading information to voters. Some of the key findings from a study of the media in GE2015 point to an asymmetry in the Conservative party's ability to influence the media agenda compared to Labour's in 2015, (e.g., economy vs NHS); patterns of intermedia agenda setting are different for coverage of leaders than issues; the extent to which issues are entirely absent from coverage has been overestimated; and Twitter activity often points users to links in traditional and online media. Two years later the context of the general election is quite different – a post-Brexit Britain with a majority Conservative government, different leaders of almost all the major parties, Brexit both the main issue and the ostensible reason the election was called, and a growing distrust of polling data and the media (e.g. 'fake news' and Twitter bots). This provides us an opportunity to re-examine and extend the study of the media through three recent elections. In this pre-conference workshop, we present analysis of media coverage and its effects in GE2017 and draw links between key narratives on the EU referendum and other issue in GE2015, the EU referendum and key narratives in the 2017 campaign. These comparisons should allow us to better understand the extent to which media contribute to the ability of voters to hold governments accountable through the electoral process.

The workshop will be led by Susan Banducci, Daniel Stevens, and Travis Coan (University of Exeter)

Wi-Fi

The University of Nottingham provides short term visitors with free access to the UoN-guest wireless network.

How to connect

1. If you are in range, your device should automatically connect to the UoN-guest network. If not, find 'UoN-guest' in the list of wireless connections available and select this network. If it is not listed you are not within range of the hotspot. Please move the device until you are in range.
2. The UoN-guest wireless login page will appear.
3. If you have already created an account, click the link to log in, otherwise follow the on-screen instructions to register for an account.
4. You will be sent two emails: one asking you to confirm your request and another with your username and password. You have 10 minutes grace time to read and confirm your access. If you do not validate your account, then it will be deleted and your device will disconnect once its 10 minutes grace period expires.
5. Once you have confirmed your account, you can log in and use the service for 7 days before you will need to re-register.
