

Changing Spaces, Trading Places

We all occupy spaces but it is the lives and experiences of generations that make places. This project explores the cross cultural and inter-generational legacy of forced and economic migration in the city of Leicester and Leicestershire and in particular the textile trade. It explores industry, commerce, settlement, domestic life, trade and the triangle of relations between India, Africa and the UK.

