

St. Matthews To Walter Evans

Working with teachers and pupils of Walter Evans school and former pupils and teachers of St Matthews village school we hope to explore the change in the way state education was offered in the Darley Abbey. A 'living history project' related to the National Curriculum, sharing pupils' perceptions of being at Walter Evans school today and memories of learners and teachers at St. Matthews around 1975 when the school was closed will be the focus of the project. Completed work will be shared and celebrated with the community through an exhibition in the new school extension.
