Abstracts

1 Emilia Banou and Louise Hitchcock. The ‘Lord of Vapheio’: the social identity of the dead and its implications for Laconia in the Late Helladic II-IIIA period

The paper examines the social identity of the dead buried in the cist-grave of the tholos tomb of Vapheio, on the basis of the funerary gifts which accompanied him and the symbolism of the tomb’s architecture. It also combines the evidence from Vapheio with the picture we possess of the Eurotas valley in the LHII-III period.

It is concluded that the occupant of the cist in the Vapheio tholos was an important ruler, having established (at least in the transition from the LHIIA to the LHIIIB period) significant contacts with Minoan Crete. These contacts permitted him and his immediate successors to stand at front in the developments of their time in the mainland, having by that time set the territory they controlled on the way to becoming a state. Having their seat presumably on Paliopyrgi, they had to rival at least two other local centres of power in the Eurotas valley, namely Vouno Panayias and Ayios Vassileios, at a close distance. How they may have succeeded in achieving and maintaining their position remains to be elucidated through systematic research and excavation of all three sites, which would also shed light on the process leading to the rise of Mycenaean states in the Argolid, where the same pattern of intervisible important Mycenaean sites can be observed.

2 Diana Burton. God and Hero: the iconography and cult of Apollo at the Amyklaion

Cult and art recognise an ambivalence between Olympian and underworld gods, which is generally lacking in literary sources. The Peloponnese was rich in divinities who carried epithets associating them with the underworld. This paper explores the iconography of one such divine figure, the statue of Apollo at Amyklai, and his cult, in the context of the associated hero-cult of Hyakinthos.

Θεοί, ήρωες και ο κάτω κόσμος: λατρεία και εικονογραφία

Στην λατρεία και την τέχνη υπάρχει μια διφορούμενη στάση μεταξύ των Ολύμπιων και χθόνιων θεοτήτων, η οποία όμως δεν εμφανίζεται γενικά στις γραπτές πηγές. Στην
Πελοπόννησο αφθονούν οι θεότητες που έφεραν επίθετα σχετικά με τον Κάτω Κόσμο. Αυτή η ανακοίνωση ερευνά την εικονογραφία τέτοιων θεοτήτων όπως το άγαλμα του Διός Μειλίχου, έργο του Πολυκλείτου στο Άργος, και το λατρευτικό άγαλμα των Απόλλωνα στις Αμύκλες, καθώς και την λατρεία τους στο πλαίσιο τοπικών προσαλεξεων. Κάποιες λατρείες όπως αυτή του Διός Μειλίχου, αποτέλεσαν το αντικείμενο διαδεδομένης λατρείας, αν και ενδεχομένως συνεχίζουν χαρακτηριστικά ντόπιας εικονογραφίας.

3 Nikolaos Dimakis. The display of individual status in the burials of Classical and Hellenistic Argos

This paper aims to outline the ways in which burials can be analysed in order to investigate the display of individual status in the mortuary record of Classical and Hellenistic Argos. Subsequently, this study will throw light on social inequality and the degrees of socio-political ranking within the Argive society of the Classical and Hellenistic periods.

Η επίδειξη ατομικής κοινωνικής ταυτότητας στις ταφές του Άργους των κλασικών και ελληνιστικών χρόνων

Σκοπός αυτής της παρουσίασης είναι να αναφέρεται στα τρόπια με τον οποίο μπορούν να αναλυθούν οι ταφές προκειμένου να ερευνηθεί η επίδειξη ατομικής κοινωνικής ταυτότητας στις ταφικές σύνολα του Άργους κατά τους κλασικούς και ελληνιστικούς χρόνους. Ακολούθως, η παρούσα μελέτη θα διαφωτίσει ζητήματα κοινωνικής ανισότητας και το βαθμό κοινωνικο-πολιτικής διαστροφής στην Αργειακή κοινωνία των κλασικών και ελληνιστικών χρόνων.

4 Eleni Drakaki. Late Bronze Age female burials with hard stone seals from the Peloponnese: a contextual approach

In Mycenaean Greece, hard stone seals were predominantly deposited with burials and are often regarded by scholars as emblems of their owners’ personal and social identity. In an effort to achieve a better understanding of the mechanisms of seal ownership, this paper undertakes a detailed examination of the contextual associations of a small corpus of hard stone seals associated with nine Late Bronze Age elite female burials from the Peloponnese. The conclusion reached is that the seals do not always reflect the wealth/status differences of the burials, while in their overwhelming majority they are not engraved with ‘female appropriate’ motifs. Finally, the comparison of some of these female burials with male burials of equal status helps to establish that the former were furnished more modestly and with significantly fewer seals.

Γυναικείες ταφές της Ύστερης Εποχής του Χαλκού από την Πελοπόννησο με σφραγίδες από σκληρούς λίθους: προσέγγιση πλαισίου.

Η ανακοίνωση αυτή παρουσιάζει μια διαχρονική μελέτη δέκα (πιθανώς) γυναικείων ταφών, οι οποίες είναι κτερισμένες με σφραγίδες από σκληρούς λίθους. Στις περιπτώσεις που αυτό καθίσταται δυνατόν, ο πλούτος και τα χαρακτηριστικά κτερίσματα συγκρίνονται με εκείνα συγχρόνων ανδρικών ταφών ανάλογης κοινωνικής θέσης (status), σε μια προσπάθεια να διακριθούν διαφορές ή/και ομοιότητες ανάμεσά τους. Ιδιαίτερη προσοχή δίδεται στην εικονογραφία των σφραγίδων, καθώς τα μοτίβα τους εκλαμβάνονται συχνά ως σύμβολα της προσωπικής και κοινωνικής ταυτότητας των κατόχων τους. Το (ιδίως) εκπληκτικό συμπέρασμα είναι ότι η χρήση μοτίβων αυτών παρουσιάζει σημαντικές διαφορές μεταξύ των γυναικείων και ανδρικών ταφών του ίδιου κοινωνικού κλάδου.

5 Rachel S. Fox. Vessels and the body in Early Mycenaean funerary contexts
The capsule-type nature of the Shaft Graves at Mycenae means that they are an ideal dataset upon which to perform an analysis of the vessels found within them. In this paper I examine the metal and ceramic vessels from both Grave Circles, noting the forms that predominate and from these drawing conclusions regarding the ritual practices surrounding the interment of a body and the ways in which social messages could be conveyed to the funeral attendees. Following this, I consider how the vessels can be correlated with sex, age and other grave-goods, thus demonstrating how feasting practices were a method of displaying and accruing socio-political status in the Early Mycenaean period.

Florentia Fragkopoulou. Sanctuary dedications and the treatment of the dead in Laconia (800–600 BC): the case of Artemis Orthia

This paper focuses on two ivory plaques NM 15518 and NM 16432 retrieved from the sanctuary of Artemis Orthia during the excavations conducted by the British School at Athens during the 1906–10 seasons. The uniqueness of these plaques lies in their iconography (each one is decorated with a prothesis scene which is a rather unusual decorative element for sanctuary dedications), their luxurious material, and the fact that no other ivory parallels of this sort are known from other contemporaneous Lakonian sanctuaries. Since their recovery, scholars have concentrated on their stylistic production and chronological implications within the context of Spartan-Near Eastern relationships during the Archaic period. This paper focuses on their interpretation within the ritual context of the sanctuary of Artemis Orthia itself with the aim of defining their role within the ritual context of the Limnai sanctuary.

Anathήματα και η θεραπεία των νεκρών στη Λακωνία (800-600 π.Χ.): η περίπτωση της Αρτέμιδος Ορθίας

Η έρευνα που αφορά στη θέση και την κοινωνική οργάνωση των ιερών, ειδικότερα από τον 8ο αι. κ.ε., έχει μελετηθεί με λεπτομέρεια το ρόλο τους στο θέμα των επικρατειών της πρώιμης δημιουργίας κρατών. Η οργάνωση των ιερών κατά τη διάρκεια της δημιουργίας του σπαρτιατικού κράτους, αποτελεί μία ξεχωριστή περίπτωση στη Λακωνία καθώς φαίνεται να συνδέεται στενά με τον τρόπο θεραπείας των νεκρών. Το σπαρτιατικό κράτος δημιουργήθηκε μέσω της καταλήψεως ή/και της ενσωμάτωσης διαφόρων εδαφικών περιοχών. Ταυτόχρονα με αυτή τη διαδικασία, διαφορετικές κοινωνικές ομάδες κατέληξαν να συμπεριληφθούν (ή και επισήμως να αποκλειστούν από) στη Σπαρτατική πολιτική κοινότητα. Θα περιέμενε, λοιπόν, κανείς να ανακαλύψει την επίσημη έκφραση αυτών των σχέσεων στα τελετουργικά δρώμενα. Στο πλαίσιο αυτού, συγκεκριμένα αναθήματα όπως σκηνές πρόθεσης που βρίσκονται ανάμεσα σε προσφορές στο ιερό της Αρτέμιδος Ορθίας αποκτούν συγκεκριμένο νόημα. Έτσι, μέσω της εξέτασης των στοιχείων για την απεικόνιση διαφορετικών υπο-ομάδων αναθημάτων από το αρχαιολογικό ύλικό ιερών εντός της Λακωνικής επικράτειας κατά την πρώιμη περίοδο της δημιουργίας του σπαρτιατικού κράτους (π. 800-600 π.Χ.), η παρούσα ανακοίνωση επιχειρεί να διαφωτίσει το ρόλο που έπαιξε η θεραπεία των νεκρών στη διαμόρφωση κοινωνικής συνοχής εντός της Λακωνίας κατά τη διάρκεια μιας καθοριστικής για κοινωνικο-πολιτικές αλλαγές περιόδου, με ιδιαίτερη αναφορά: α) στην εξέλιξη των τελετουργικών πρακτικών αυτή την περίοδο, και β) στις διαφορετικές ομάδες που εμπλέκονταν: τι επέλεγαν να θυμόνται/τιμούν, τι επέλεγαν (ή ήταν υποχρεωμένες) να ξεχνούν, και ποιοι επέβαλαν το κυρίαρχο πλαίσιο που όφειλαν να ακολουθούν;

7 Stamatís Fritzílas. Grave stelai and burials in Megalópolis

This paper examines certain representative examples of grave stelai found in the region of the federal capital of ancient Arcadia. These are a small but characteristic group of funerary stelai, mainly of Hellenistic and Roman date, and forming part of the Archaeological Collection of Megalopolis. They are presented with a commentary and illustrated, in some cases for the first time. They comprise characteristic funerary monuments which display not only a particular concern to make the grave visible, but also to preserve the deceased’s name, in order to keep his memory alive. The inscribed stelai provide important cultural and demographic information. They enlarge the prosopography of Megalopolis, since they mention certain names of its inhabitants and their family or social relationships. They also include dictums which reflect the spirit of the times, record the passage of the deceased into the next world and ensure his eternal fame. Epigraphic material as well as available data from excavations are brought together. There is a variety of types of burial, brought to light by rescue excavations carried out by the Greek Archaeological Service in the area of Megalopolis, as a result of building activity mainly in the southern part of the ancient city and of public works in the countryside.

Επιτύμβιες στήλες στη Μεγαλόπολη

Στην ανακοίνωση αυτή εξετάζονται ορισμένα αντιπροσωπευτικά παραδείγματα ταφικών στηλών που βρέθηκαν στην επικράτεια της ομοσπονδιακής πρωτεύουσας της αρχαίας Αρκαδίας. Πρόκειται για μικρή αλλά χαρακτηριστική σειρά επιτύμβιων στηλών, κυρίως της ελληνιστικής και ρωμαϊκής εποχής, που φυλάσσονται στην Αρχαιολογική Συλλογή της Μεγαλόπολης. Σχολιάζονται και απεικονίζονται, ορισμένα για πρώτη φορά, χαρακτηριστικά ταφικά μνημεία που μαρτυρούν ότι μόνο την ιδιαίτερη φροντίδα να σημανθεί ο τάφος του νεκρού αλλά και να διασωθεί το όνομά του, ώστε η μνήμη του να διατηρηθεί ζωντανή. Οι ενεπίγραφες στήλες παρέχουν σημαντικά πολιτισμικά και δημογραφικά στοιχεία. Εμπλουτίζουν την προσωπογραφία της Μεγαλόπολης, καθώς μας πληροφορούν για τα ονόματα των κατοίκων της και για τις οικογενειακές ή φιλικές τους σχέσεις. Στα μνημεία αυτά έχουν γραφεί και αποφθέγματα που αποτυπώθηκαν στα πενείμα της εποχής, σηματοδοτώντας τη μετάβαση του νεκρού στον άλλο κόσμο και την εξασφάλιση του υπερθάνετο. Στη μελέτη συγκεντρώνονται όχι μόνο τα επιγραφικά αλλά και τα διαθέσιμα ανασκαφικά δεδομένα. Πρόκειται για ταφές διαφόρων τύπων που έχουν έρθει στο φως στις σωστικές ανασκαφές που διεξήχθη η Ελληνική Αρχαιολογική Τήρηση τα τελευταία χρόνια στα εδάφη της Μεγαλόπολης, αποτέλεσμα της σύγχρονης οικοδομικής δραστηριότητας στο νότιο κυρίως τμήμα της αρχαίας πόλης και της εκτέλεσης δημοσίων έργων στην ύπαρξη χώρα.

8 Pepi Gavala. The sculpted monuments in Laconian cemeteries (late 19th – early 20th century)

Many funerary monuments in the cemeteries of Greek cities and towns, including those in Laconia, bear the stamp of Classicism, an important school of art in Western Europe during the 18th and 19th centuries, which greatly influenced Greek art and architecture in the 19th century. The identification and recording of those monuments helps their preservation through the ages, since they are constantly at risk of being damaged. The types of monument and their decoration as well as their inscriptions and epigrams are also recorded. The main target of such efforts is focused on an awareness of the historical and aesthetic value of these monuments.

Τα μνημεία των κοιμητηρίων της Λακωνίας

Στην ανακοίνωση αυτή παρουσιάζονται τα ταφικά μνημεία των Κοιμητηρίων της Λακωνίας του 19ου και 20ου αιώνα (επιτύμβιες στήλες, προτομές, σταυροί, βάθρα, κ.α.).

9 Olivier Gengler. Leonidas and the heroes of Thermopylae: memory of the dead and identity in Roman Sparta

Through a new examination of the evidence relating to the contest organised in Sparta in honour of Pausanias, Leonidas and the Three Hundred, essentially known from Pausanias the Periegete and various inscriptions, this paper proposed a new insight into the construction of Spartan identity in Roman imperial times. A comparison with a text of Plutarch reveals how the organisation of the Leonideia constituted for the Spartan of the second century AD a further attempt to equal their ancestors.

Ο Λεωνίδας και οι ήρωες των Θερμοπυλών: η ανάμνηση των νεκρών και η κοινωνική ταυτότητα στη ρωμαϊκή Σπάρτη

Σκοπός της εργασίας αυτής είναι να επανεξετάσει τα στοιχεία σχετικά με τα Λεωνίδεια στο ευρύτερο πλαίσιο των μεταμορφώσεων των σπαρτιατικών παραδόσεων κατά τους Αυτοκρατορικούς χρόνους, και σε σχέση με την εικόνα της σπαρτιατικής ιστορίας στη λογοτεχνία αυτής της περιόδου.

10 Mercourios Georgiadis. Honouring the dead in Mesolithic and Neolithic Peloponnese: a few general observations

The change from the Mesolithic way of life and the introduction of agriculture in the Neolithic period has been fundamental for local societies. New economic and social conditions appeared, transforming at the same time the local belief systems and the way of everyday life. This paper will show how these changes can be traced in the funerary context, where the emphasis was concentrated and how honouring of the dead altered from the Mesolithic to the Neolithic, in the examples we have from the Peloponnese. Although the available examples are very limited for these long periods of time, they can provide useful insights into the social conditions of these phases.

Τιμώντας τους νεκρούς στη μεσολιθική και νεολιθική Πελοπόννησο: μερικές γενικές παρατηρήσεις

Η αλλαγή από τον Μεσολιθικό τρόπο ζωής και η εισαγωγή της γεωργίας στην νεολιθική περίοδο υπήρξε σημαντική για τις τοπικές κοινωνίες. Εμφανίστηκαν νέες οικονομικές και κοινωνικές συνθήκες, μετασχηματίζοντας την ίδια στιγμή τον τοπικό τρόπο ζωής και την καθημερινή ζωή. Αυτή η παρατηρήσεις θα δείξει πώς αυτές οι αλλαγές μπορούν να εμφανιστούν μέσα από το ταφικό περιεχόμενο, που δίνεται έμφαση και πώς οι τιμές των νεκρών αλλάζουν από την Μεσολιθική στην Νεολιθική περίοδο, από τα παραδείγματα που έχουμε από την Πελοπόννησο. Αν και τα παραδείγματα που διαθέτουμε είναι λίγα για αυτές τις μακρές περιόδους, μπορούν να προσφέρουν χρήσιμες πληροφορίες για τις κοινωνικές συνθήκες αυτών των φάσεων.

11 Grigoris Grigorakakis. New investigations by the 39th Ephoria of Prehistoric and Classical Antiquities at Helleniko, N. Kynouria. The burial of Late Classical date from the western roadside cemetery

200 m west of the grave enclosure on the west slopes of Teichio at Helleniko in northern Kynouria, in the framework of rescue excavations by the Ephoria, a tomb of the mid-4th century BC was investigated. The large number of offerings categorizes it as a ‘wealthy’ burial, and provides us with valuable information both about the mortuary practices, and about the conception of the next world. Finally, the location of the grave, the extent of the cemetery along the road and its relationship both to other cemeteries in the vicinity and, in particular, to the spectacular acropolis at Teichio, indicates the significance of this site in the Thyreatis.

Νέες έρευνες της ΛΘ΄ Εφορείας Προϊστορικών και Κλασικών Αρχαιοτήτων στο Ελληνικό βόρειας Κυνουρίας. Η ταφή των ύστερων κλασικών χρόνων του δυτικού παρόδου νεκροταφείου

Διακόσια μέτρα δυτικότερα των περιφραγμένων τάφων στις δυτικές υπώρειες του Τειχίου, στο Ελληνικό της βόρειας Κυνουρίας, στο πλαίσιο σωστικής ανασκαφής της Εφορείας διερευνήθηκε τάφος των μέσων του 4ου π.Χ. αι. Ο μεγάλος αριθμός κτερισμάτων παραπέμπει σε 'πλούσια' ταφή, και μας δίδει πολύτιμες πληροφορίες τόσο για τα ταφικά έθιμα, όσο και για τις αντιλήψεις σχετικά με τον επέκεινο κόσμο. Τέλος, η θέση του τάφου, η έκταση του παρόδου νεκροταφείου και η σχέση του με τα άλλα νεκροταφεία στην περιοχή, και κυρίως με την επιβλητική Ακρόπολη στο Τειχίο, καταδεικνύει και τη σπουδαιότητα της θέσης αυτής της Θυρεάτιδος.

Georgia Kakourou-Chroni. Nikiforos Vrettakos: “Let us depart ascending ...”

The poetry of Laconian-born Nikiforos Vrettakos might be said to have death as one of its defining themes. This paper traces the development of the poetical ego from his first collection where “death permeates”, to his last where “light rises from the soul”. The transition begins to take shape and form during World War II when death has the power to “kill God” but also to “shed light on the pain of the world”.

The purpose of this paper is to introduce the attitude to death that emerges in the poetry of Nikiforos Vrettakos and unfolds in three stages: nihilism and the dominance of death; heroic death; and the recognition of human immortality.

Critical studies of a lifetime of literary work seen as a whole frequently divide the work into periods on the basis of certain characteristics that pervade each one. This approach is widely accepted by both critics and readers since it facilitates study, though they recognise the fact that the periods are not separated by brick walls and the characteristics of one period overlap those of the next, often making it difficult to see where one period ends and another begins. Neither do all concerned agree over the timeframes.

Having pointed this out, I shall refer to the three different attitudes to death that evolve in the poetry of Nikiforos Vrettakos, keeping within the constraints of time imposed by an introduction of this kind. These attitudes are: nihilism and the dominance of death; heroic death; and the recognition of human immortality.

Νικηφόρος Βρεττάκος: «ας φεύγουμε ανεβαίνοντας ...»

Η ποιητική του λάκωνα λογοτέχνη Νικηφόρου Βρεττάκου θα μπορούσε να ισχυρισθεί κανένας ότι οριοθετείται και από το θέμα του θανάτου. Στην ανακοίνωσή αυτή καταγράφεται, από την πρώτη συλλογή, η πορεία του ποιητικού εγώ, όταν «υπερκαλύπτεται από τον θάνατο», έως την τελευταία που «φως βγάζει η ψυχή του». Η μεταστροφή αυτή αρχίζει να συντελείται κατά το Δεύτερο Παγκόσμιο Πόλεμο, τότε που ο θάνατος μπορεί να «δολοφονεί το Θεό», αλλά και να «φωτίζει τον παγκόσμιο πόνο».

Konstantinos Kalogeropoulos. The Social and religious significance of palatial jars as grave offerings

It is generally accepted that the monumental and very finely painted jars found mainly during LH IIa in rich Peloponnesian tombs (so called palatial jars) are prestige items connected with the early Mycenaean Peloponnesian elite. The aim of this paper is not to refute the basic idea behind such a general identification but to enlarge upon it. It is argued that the use of ‘palatial jars’ in mortuary ceremonies has a certain religious connotation also, since several syntactic and iconographic elements on these vases point to their ritual use and symbolism.

The death of the high-ranking family members

It is generally accepted that the monumental and imposing amphorae - known as ‘palatial amphorae’ - found in the rich Mycenaean tombs of the Early Mycenaean period were objects of high prestige associated with the higher social classes in the Peloponnese. The purpose of this notice is not to reject the basic idea behind this general association but to extend it. It can be hypothesized that the use of these ‘palatial amphorae’ in funerary ceremonies also has a specific religious role as several syntactic and iconographic elements on these vases point to their ritual use and symbolism.

14 Dimitrios Katsoulakos. The lament in southern ‘koile Lakedaimon’ and the turbulent history of Greece

The Moiroloï carries within it historical witness to the collective memory. It is a treasury of the human reaction to extreme experiences. The violent events undergone by the nation (the Balkan Wars, the War in Asia Minor, the Greco-Italian War, the Civil War) deeply moved the popular sensibility, which lamented in an imaginative manner the untimely death of the young. What is particularly striking in researching this brilliant literature is the theme of injustice, which is never personalised. The injustice lies only in the loss of a young life.

15 Theodoros Katsoulakos. The relationship of the moiroloï singer with the deceased as a source of inspiration

Vital data for research into the Moiroloï are the date of its recording and knowledge of the relationship between the singer and the deceased. If these facts are known, the researcher will have at their disposal a picture of the circumstances of its composition, insofar as this is possible. The Moiroloï, as a discrete artistic creation, must, for this reason, be accompanied by as much information as possible.

16 Georgia Kokkorou-Alevras. Funerary statuary of the Archaic period in the Peloponnese
During the Archaic period in Attica and in the Aegean islands there are many stone funerary monuments commemorating the dead. These monuments include a variety of statuary types such as kouroi and korai, lions, sphinxes, gorgons and so forth as well as the more common relief stelai bearing representations of the dead. On the other hand, the number of stone funerary monuments in the Peloponnese is very small and consists mainly of statues of lions, rarely of sphinxes and other types. It seems most probable that the statues of lions, which were represented sitting on high columns that were erected over the tombs, symbolized the bravery of the dead as indicated by the ancient written sources.

The fact that the Peloponnesian funerary statuary has been found mainly in the territory of Corinth and in the Argolid, may be explained by the vicinity of these areas to Attica and the Cycladic islands and by the influence exercised by these areas in the north-east Peloponnese.

Finally, the main reason for the general rarity of funerary sculpture in the Peloponnese may be the different, ‘Doric’ ideal that existed in this area and which is documented by the Spartan, Lykourgan, attitude towards honouring the dead, which did not favour the distinction of the individual through lavish grave monuments.

Eleni Konstantintidi-Syvridi and Konstantinos Paschalidis. Honouring the dead behind the scenes: the case of the chamber tomb to the south of Grave Circle B at Mycenae

During the summers of 1952 and 1953 in the course of the excavations of Grave Circle B at Mycenae, Ioannis Papadimitriou located and excavated an Early Mycenaean chamber tomb, which has remained unpublished up to now. Its location and the finds from the tomb preserve information about the granting of honours to the dead and ancestors over the ensuing periods, with a different content on each occasion. Following analysis of the architectural form and the offerings in the tomb, the evidence for hero worship is examined, which was the excavator’s interpretation of the rich remains of the Late Geometric period from within and above the chamber. Likewise, the proximity of a number of important funerary monuments (Grave Circle B, the Tomb of Clytemnestra, the chamber tomb) to the Hellenistic theatre of the town, where the tragedies of the Atreids would have been re-enacted, is emphasised. Finally, the memory of the excavator is honoured, whose diaries reveal the thoughts of a great archaeologist and the concerns of an everyday human being.

Τιμώντας τους νεκρούς στα παρασκήνια: η περίπτωση του θαλαμωτού τάφου νότια του Κύκλου Β των Μυκηνών

Τα καλοκαίρια του 1952 και του 1953 κατά την ανασκαφή του ταφικού Κύκλου Β, ο Ιωάννης Παπαδημητρίου εντόπισε και ανέσκαψε έναν πρώιμο μυκηναϊκό θαλαμωτό τάφο, που παρέμεινε αδημοσίευτος έως σήμερα. Η θέση και τα ευρήματα του τάφου διασώζουν στοιχεία για την απόδοση τιμών σε νεκρούς και προγόνους σε διαδοχικές χρονικές περιόδους και με διαφορετικό κάθε φορά περιεχόμενο. Μετά την αναλυτική παρουσίαση της αρχιτεκτονικής και των κτερισμάτων του τάφου, εξετάζοντα τα στοιχεία της ηρωολατρείας, όπως ερμήνευσε ο ανασκαφέας τα πλούσια κατάλοιπα της ύστερης Γεωμετρικής περιόδου μέσα και πάνω από το θάλαμο. Σχολιάζεται επίσης η γειτνίαση των σημαντικών ταφικών μνημείων (Κύκλος Β, θολωτός Κλυταιμνήστρας, θαλαμωτός τάφος) με το ελληνιστικό θέατρο της πόλης, όπου αναβίωναν τα πάθη των Ατρειδών. Τέλος, αποτίεται φόρος τιμής στον ανασκαφέα, τα ημερολόγια του οποίου αποκαλύπτουν τις σκέψεις ενός μεγάλου αρχαιολόγου και τις ανησυχίες ενός καθημερινού ανθρώπου.

18 Angeliki Kossyva. The invisible dead of Delpriza, Kranidi

Despite the wealth of data for habitation in the southern Argolid from very early times, very little is known about the framework of society and its economy during the Early Bronze Age as it can be established through the burials and the behaviour of the community towards the dead.

As regards the Classical period also, the tombs of ordinary people reveal unknown aspects of the organization of small rural communities of the region, the economic potential and the external contacts of the rural population living in the shadow of the urban centres of Hermione and Halieis.

Some aspects of the above-mentioned points were possible to be detected through the finds of the rescue excavation in the Delpriza area, which is only 2.5 km away from the Franchthi cave and about 8 km from Halieis.

Οι αφανείς νεκροί της Δέλπριζας Κρανιδίου

Η αποκάλυψη τμήματος ενός οργανωμένου νεκροταφείου μιας αγροτικής κοινότητας των ύστερων κλασικών–ελληνιστικών χρόνων, στο πλαίσιο σωστικής ανασκαφής που διενεργείται από τη Δ’ ΕΠΚΑ στην περιοχή ‘Δέλπριζα’ Κρανιδίου, συντηρείται με την περιορισμένη παρουσία νεκροταφείων στο αρχαιολογικό τοπίο της Άργολιδας. Δύο χιλιόμετρα νότια από το Φράγχθι και 2,5 χλμ. ανατολικά του χωριού της Κοιλάδας, στην ευρύτερη περιοχή της οποίας τοποθετείται και η αρχαία πόλη Μάση, ανιχνεύουμε μέσα από τις ταφικές πρακτικές την οικονομική επιφάνεια απλών ανθρώπων.

19 Sokratis S. Koursoumis and Anna-Vassiliki Karapanagiotou. Anthropomorphic stele from Levidi, Arcadia: a typological and interpretative study

The anthropomorphic stele of Levidi is one of the earliest colossal statues of Arcadian monumental sculpture, dated in the late 7th – early 6th century BC. Due to its size, shape and monumental character, it is interpreted as a funerary monument, erected on a tomb in the north Orchomenian plain, which probably belonged to Aristokrates, the mythical king of Arcadia punished by death for his sacrilege.

Ανθρωπόμορφη στήλη από το Λεβίδι Αρκαδίας: τυπολογική και ερμηνευτική προσέγγιση

Η ανθρωπόμορφη στήλη του Λεβιδίου αποτελεί ένα από τα πρωιμότερα, κολοσσικά έργα της αρκαδικής μεγάλης πλαστικής, χρονολογούμενο στη τέλη του 7ος – αρχές του 6ου αιώνα π.Χ. Το μέγεθος, η μορφή και ο μνημειώδης χαρακτήρας της οδηγούν στην εμφανιση της ως επιτάφιου μνημείου, αναγνώρισε που βρέθηκε σε τόπο ο οποίος πιθανά ανήκε στον αρχαίο Αριστοκράτη, ο οποίος κατασκευάστηκε με δάκτυλο λόγω των ανασκαφής ανακαλύπτουν του.

20 Marioanna Louka. Votive jewellery in the Archaic Peloponnese

Jewellery in the Peloponnese is characterized by various categories, ranging from sumptuous earrings to carefully crafted pins, fibulae and bracelets. These specimens, recovered either from a funerary or a sanctuary/votive context, reveal the local workshops' artistic connections with other important artistic centres of the time on the Greek mainland and the islands, as well as the impact of earlier traditions. The Peloponnese provides us with a very interesting research field, as these finds prove that the restrictions imposed by the Spartan regime evidently did not apply to all regions, nor to all circumstances in the life of Peloponnesian women – and therefore speak of the multi-levelled character of this centuries-old and ever appealing craft.

Η κοινωνική προέκταση των κτερισματικών και αναθηματικών κοσμημάτων στην αρχαϊκή Πελοπόννησο
Τα κοσμήματα της αρχαϊκής περιόδου από την Πελοπόννησο με την σημαντική τους τυπολογία, από τα πολυτελή ενώτια έως τις πόρπες, τις πόρπες και τα ψέλια, αναδεικνύουν τις δημιουργικές σχέσεις των τοπικών εργαστηρίων με άλλα σημαντικά καλλιτεχνικά κέντρα της εποχής στην κυρίως Ελλάδα και τα νησιά, καθώς και με παλαιότερες παραδόσεις. Η Πελοπόννησια μνημή αποτελεί ένα ενδιαφέρον πεδίο έρευνας σχετικά με τα ταφικά έθιμα, όπως αυτά εκφράζονται μέσα από τα κοσμήματα που συνόδευαν τις γυναικείους-κατόχους τους στο επέκεινα, αλλά και τα κοσμήματα στην κοινωνική τους διάσταση, όταν αυτά διατηρούνταν στους κόλπους της οικογένειας ως προϊόν ή για να ανατεθούν στα μεγάλα εργα της εποχής, προβάλλοντας έτσι τον πολλαπλό χαρακτήρα αυτής της πανάρχαιας τέχνης που συνεχίζει να μας γοητεύει.

21 Jean-Marc Luce. Iron Age burial customs in the Peloponnese and their place in the funerary geography of the Greek world
As appears from a wide survey of more than 6000 Iron Age graves in the Greek world, burial practices in the Peloponnese are very similar to those in Akarnania, Aitolia and Lokris. Comparison of the map of burial types based on the above with the dialect map affords surprising and unexpected results. The striking difference between the practices in the Peloponnese and those described by Homer should be noted. The role of burials in signalling ethnic identity will also be discussed. Specifically, the question raised here is whether the graves of this period can be interpreted as ‘geo-symbols’ as defined by the geographer Joël Bonnemaison in ‘Voyage autour du patrimoine’ Espace géographique 4 (1981) 249-62.

22 Christina Marabea. The tholos tomb at Kambos, Avia: excavation by Christos Tsountas, 1891
This paper is a short presentation of the Mycenaean tholos tomb at Kambos, Avia (prefecture of Messinia) whose full study and publication has been undertaken by the author. The tomb, investigated by Christos Tsountas in 1891, was found looted; however, it yielded a number of small objects, among them two well-known lead figurines of Minoan character. Of particular importance are the reports and other documents, now deposited in the Archives of the Archaeological Society at Athens, in which Christos Tsountas revealed aspects of his investigation. Preliminary estimates are put forward for the dating of the monument and historical implications are outlined.

Ο θολωτός τάφος στον Κάμπο Αβίας: η ανασκαφή του Χρήστου Τσούντα, 1891

Το παρόν άρθρο αποτελεί σύντομη παρουσίαση του Μυκηναϊκού θολωτού τάφου στον Κάμπο Αβίας (Νομού Μεσσηνίας), του οποίου την πλήρη μελέτη και δημοσίευση έχει αναλάβει η υπογραφόμενη. Ο τάφος, ο οποίος ερευνήθηκε από τον Χρήστο Τσούντα το 1891, βρέθηκε συλημένος. Ωστόσο, απέδωσε αριθμό μικροαντικειμένων, μεταξύ των οποίων τα δύο γνωστά μολύβδινα ειδώλια Μινωικού τύπου. Ιδιαίτερη σημασία έχουν οι αναφορές και τα άλλα έγγραφα, σήμερα στο Αρχείο της Εν Αθήναις Αρχαιολογικής Εταιρείας, οπού ο Χρήστος Τσούντας αποκαλύπτει πλευρές της έρευνάς του. Δίδονται πρώτες εκτιμήσεις για τη χρονολόγηση του μνημείου και διαγράφονται ιστορικές προεκτάσεις.

23  Eleni Marantou. Ancestor worship and hero cult in the central and southern Peloponnese: the evidence from Pausanias

In antiquity, ancestors and heroes held a special place in people’s memory and in their hearts. It was extremely common for funerary monuments of distinguished individuals to be set up in conspicuous places, and frequently cult ceremonies took place to honour them. In his guide, Pausanias describes inter alia the funerary monuments which he encounters. The present paper will bring together the many funerary monuments which Pausanias noted in Arcadia, Elis, Messenia and Laconia with the aim of identifying the location of the funerary cults, in order to link them with the history of the region and to understand the reasons behind their existence.

Οι πρόγονοι και οι ήρωες κατείχαν ιδιαίτερη θέση στη μνήμη και την καρδιά των ανθρώπων κατά την αρχαιότητα. Η εγκαθίδρυση ταφικών μνημείων για εξέχουσες προσωπικότητες σε περίβλεπτα σημεία αποτελούσε σύννεφο φαινόμενο, ενώ συχνά αφιερώνονταν θρησκευτικές τελευταίες προς τιμήν τους. Στην Περιήγησή του ο Παυσανίας περιγράφει, εκτός άλλου, τα ταφικά μνημεία που συναντά. Συγκεντρώνοντας τα στοιχεία για όλα τα ταφικά μνημεία που αναφέρει ο Παυσανίας στους νομούς Αρκαδίας, Ηλείας, Μεσσηνίας και Λακωνίας και εντοπίζοντας τους χώρους ταφικής λατρείας, σκοπός της παρούσας ανακόινωσης είναι η σύνδεσή τους με την ιστορία της κάθε περιοχής και η κατανόηση των λόγων εγκαθίδρυσής τους.

24  Iro Mathioudaki. Honouring the dead with polychrome pots: the case of Mainland Polychrome pottery in Peloponnesian funerary contexts (an interpretative approach)

The subject of this paper concerns the fine pottery type of the early Late Helladic period, known as ‘Mainland Polychrome’, well represented in the Shaft Graves at Mycenae and sometimes decorated with pictorial motives such as birds and griffins. The pottery has specific character and function, being elaborate and technologically advanced; it carries a certain aesthetic value. The example provides an appropriate case-study for the application of theoretical models developed and tested by Material Culture Studies (i.e. aesthetics, object biographies), also taking methodological issues into consideration. Pottery with such inherent qualitative properties becomes the material manifestation of concepts developed and expressed by “communities of the dead” of a certain spatio-temporal context.

Τιμώντας τους νεκρούς με πολύχρωμα αγγεία: η περίπτωση της ηπειρωτικής πολύχρωμης κεραμικής στα ταφικά σύνολα της Πελοποννήσου (ερμηνευτική προσέγγιση)
Το θέμα μου είναι η λεπτή κεραμεική της Πρώιμης Ύστεροελλαδικής περιόδου, γνωστή ως "ηπειρωτική πολύχρωμη κεραμεική", η οποία εκπροσωπείται στους Κάθετους Λακκοειδείς Τάφους των Μυκηνών και είναι συχνά διακοσμημένη με εικονιστικά μοτίβα όπως πουλιά και γρύπες. Η κεραμεική έχει ιδιαίτερο χαρακτήρα και λειτουργία, επεξεργασμένη με ακρίβεια και τεχνολογικά προγραμματισμένη. Φέρει δε μια συγκεκριμένη αισθητική αξία. Αυτό το υλικό προσφέρει την κατάλληλη βάση για την εφαρμογή των θεωρητικών μοντέλων που αναπτύσσονται και δοκιμάζονται σε μελέτες υλικού πολιτισμού (π.χ. αισθητική, βιογραφίες αντικειμένων). Μεθοδολογικά ζητήματα θα ληφθούν επίσης υπ' άπειρον. Η κεραμεική αυτού του είδους που διαθέτει τέτοιες ποιοτικές και εγγενείς ιδιότητες, γίνεται η υλική εκδήλωση εννοιών που αναπτύσσονται και εκφράζονται από την «κοινότητα των νεκρών» σε ένα συγκεκριμένο χωροχρονικό πλαίσιο.

25 Sotiris Lambropoulos, Panagiotis Moutzouridis and Kostas Nikolentzos. Hybrid burial monuments of the Late Bronze Age in two recently excavated sites in Elis (Strephi and Arvaniti)

This paper reviews the conclusions of archaeological research on two new sites of the Late Bronze Age, in the municipal prefectures of Strephi and Arvanitis (prefecture of Elis). The sites present particular interest, because of the diversity of burial architecture (co-existence of chamber tombs, burial pits and niches). In addition, burial customs, social stratification, anthropological data and possible interregional contacts are also being studied.

Υβριδικά ταφικά μνημεία της Ύστερης Εποχής του Χαλκού σε δύο νέες θέσεις του νομού Ηλείας (Στρεφί και Αρβανίτη)

Η ανακοίνωση πραγματεύεται τα ανασκαφικά πορίσματα της έρευνας σε δύο νέες θέσεις της Ύστερης Εποχής του Χαλκού, στα Δ.Δ. Στρεφίου και Αρβανίτη. Οι θέσεις παρουσιάζουν ιδιαίτερο ενδιαφέρον ως προς την ποικιλομορφία της αρχιτεκτονικής των ταφικών μνημείων. Σε δεύτερο επίπεδο, εξετάζονται εθιμότυπο, κοινωνική διαστροφή, ανθρωπολογικό σεματοδοτικό και πιθανές επικοινωνίες με άλλες περιοχές.

26 Nikolas Papadimitriou. “Passing away” or “passing through”? Changing funerary attitudes in the Peloponnese at the MBA/LBA transition

This paper examines the formation and the possible symbolic meaning of the dromos-stomion-chamber layout in Mycenaean tombs. This distinctive arrangement was the outcome of a gradual restructuring of the funerary space associated with the adoption of multiple burial and the need for a permanent access to the tomb. The form of access originated in the tumulus tradition, went through an experimental stage and crystallized in the dromoi of LH II A tombs. It is argued that the observed changes in funerary attitudes were not motivated by competition among ‘powerful elites’; rather, they reflect an increasing sophistication in ritual performance and symbolic representation, resulting from a widespread renegotiation of social identities in the MH/LH transition.

"Πεθαίνοντας" ή "μεταβαίνοντας"; Η αλλαγή ταφικής νοοτροπίας στην Πελοπόννησο κατά τη μετάβαση από τη Μέση στην Ύστερη Εποχή του Χαλκού

Το άρθρο εξετάζει τη διαδικασία διαμόρφωσης της χαρακτηριστικής διάταξης των μυκηναϊκών τάφων σε dromos-stomion-chamber layout in Mycenaean tombs. Καταδεικνύεται ότι η διάταξη αυτή προέκυψε σταδιακά ως αποτέλεσμα της ανάγκης διαρκούς πρόσβασης στον τάφο. Το είδος της πρόσβασης αυτής αρχίστα να διαμορφώνεται στους ΜΕ τύμβους, πέρασε από ένα στάδιο πειραματισμού και αποκρυσταλλώθηκε κατά την TΕ II A περίοδο. Προτείνεται ότι οι παρατηρούμενες αλλαγές στα ταφικά είδη δεν οφείλονται σε κοινωνικούς ανταγωνισμούς μεταξύ «ισχυρών ελίτ» αλλά αντανακλούν μια ευρύτερη αναδιαπραγμάτευση των κοινωνικών ταυτοτήτων κατά την μεταβατική ΜΕ/ΥΕ περίοδο, η οποία οδήγησε στην ισοτίμηση συνθετότερων τελετουργιών και μορφών συμβολικής αναπαράστασης.

27 Metaxia Papapostolou. ‘Honourable death’: the honours paid in ancient Sparta to dead war-heroes and mothers dying in child-birth
In accordance with a levelling tendency in Spartan life, its burial and funerary customs were simple and austere. Offerings were not allowed at Spartan funerals. The Spartans observed a law in their code concerning burial, under which, according to Pausanias, it was not permitted to inscribe the name of the deceased over their graves, with the exceptions only of men who died in battle and women who died in child-birth. Modern historians have speculated that only through dying in child-birth could a Spartan woman earn the distinction of escaping anonymity. Sparta has been distinguished as the city which advocated the ideal of a ‘good death’ for a citizen who died in the front line, a death which Tyrtaios praises in his poetry. Certainly the female version of the ‘good death’ did not extend beyond the boundaries of Lacedaemon. Consequently, the high esteem held for death in child-birth must be explained strictly within the bounds of Sparta. In this paper reference will be made in turn to the honours which the Spartans paid to those who died in battle and at the same time we shall examine which women could gain the privilege of such honours. In other words, were death in battle and death in child-birth held in equal esteem?

Ο ‘τιμημένος θάνατος’: οι τιμές στον νεκρό ήρωα της μάχης και στη γυναίκα λεχώνα στην αρχαία Σπάρτη
Ανάλογες με την ομοιομορφία της Σπαρτιατικής ζωής ήταν και οι επικήδειες και ταφικές τελετές, λιτές και αυστηρές. Στις Σπαρτιατικές κηδείες δεν επιτρέπονταν κτερίσματα. Οι Σπαρτιάτες υπάκουαν σε μια επιταγή της νομοθεσίας τους για την ταφή, δυνάμει της οποίας, σύμφωνα με τον Πλούταρχο, δεν επιτρέπονταν να αναγράφονταν πάνω στους τάφους τα ονόματα των νεκρών, εκτός εάν επρόκειτο για άνδρες που έπεσαν στον πόλεμο και γυναίκες που πέθαναν στον τοκετό. Οι σύγχρονοι ιστορικοί έχουν θεωρήσει ότι μόνο το γεγονός του θανάτου στον τοκετό θα μπορούσε να δώσει σε μια Σπαρτιάτισσα το δικαίωμα να ξεφύγει από την ανωνυμία. Η Σπάρτη θεωρούσαν η πόλη που είχε επινοήσει το ιδιαίτερο του ‘καλού θανάτου’ για τον πολίτη που έπεσε στην πρώτη γραμμή του θανάτου στον τοκετό θα μπορούσε να δώσει σε μια Σπαρτιάτισσα το δικαίωμα να ξεφύγει από την ανωνυμία. 28 Lena Papazoglou-Manioudaki. Dishonouring the dead: the plundering of tholos tombs in the Early Palatial period and the case of the tholos tomb at Mygdalia hill (Petroto) in Achaea
The tholos tombs in Achaea, at the Mygdalia hill, Kallithea and Pharai were built in LH II and their main use came to an abrupt end in LH IIIA. This applies to most of the tholos tombs excavated at the non-palatial centres on the Greek mainland. The plundering of the interior of the tholos is usually violent, maybe deliberate, and their later use as ossuaries and for unfurnished burials does not constitute a proper reuse. The destruction of early Mycenaean settlements at the same period adds to the picture of the disturbances at the transition to the Mycenaean palatial period.
Ατιμάζοντας τους νεκρούς. Η λεηλασία των θολωτών τάφων στην Πρώιμη Ανακτορική περίοδο και η περίπτωση του θολωτού τάφου στο λόφο της Μυγδαλιάς (Πετρωτό) στην Αχαία

Οι θολωτοί τάφοι της Αχαίας στο λόφο Μυγδαλιά, Καλλιθέα και Φαραί είναι κτισμένοι στην ΥΕ II και η κύρια χρήση τους τερματίζεται αιφνίδια στην ΥΕ IIIA. Αυτό ισχύει για τους περισσότερους θολωτούς τάφους που ανασκάφηκαν σε μη ανακτορικά κέντρα στην Πελοπόννησο. Η λεηλασία του εσωτερικού του τάφου είναι συνήθως βίαια και η μετέπειτα χρήση τους ως οστεοθηκών και ως ακτέριστων τάφων δεν συνιστά πρέπουσα επαναχρησιμοποίησή τους. Η πρόωρη καταστροφή των μυκηναϊκών οικισμών κατά την ίδια περίοδο, η οποία βεβαιώνεται επίσης στο Αίγιο στην Αχαία, έρχεται να προσθέσει στην εικόνα των διαταραχών που σηματοδοτούν την έναρξη της περιόδου αυτής.

29 Annalisa Paradiso. Did Herodotus ever see the list of the Three Hundred?

“In that travail - says Herodotus - fell Leonidas, fighting most gallantly, and with him other famous Spartans, whose names I have learnt for their great worth and desert, as I have learnt besides the names of all the three hundred” [Hdt.7.224]. In this emphatic and very dense sentence, Herodotus expresses his judgement about Leonidas, when he tells us of his death, and about the warriors who died with him. Leonidas was aristos; to a lesser degree, the others were onomastoi. He claims to have gathered information about these axioi men, about all the Three Hundred. The emphasis here covers a logical contraction of his thought: he declares that he has gained information; however this information apparently concerns only their names and even all the names, not their deeds. Herodotus perhaps knows all these warriors’ names, but evidently he does not quote them all. On the other hand, he evidently knows something else, not simply their names but also the last exploits of some of them, the positive or negative last deeds or sayings of six of them: Dienekes, Alpheios, Maron, Euritios, Aristodemos and Pantites. Where did Herodotus derive his information from? An official list or oral sources? Did he see the official list inscribed on the stele and described by Pausanias 3.14? Can we deduce anything from the very form of Herodotus’ declaration?

Είδε άραγε ποτέ ο Ηρόδοτος τον κατάλογο των Τριακοσίων;

«καὶ Λεωνίδας τε ἐν τούτῳ τῷ πόνῳ πίπτει ἄνηρ γενόμενος ἀριστος καὶ ἄτεροι μετ’ αὐτῶν ὀνομαστοί Σπαρτιητῶν, τῶν ἐγώ ὡς ἄνδρων ἄξιων γενομένων ἐπιθύμην τὰ ὀνόματα, ἐπιθύμημε δὲ καὶ ἀπάντων τῶν τρικοσίων» (Ηροδ. 7.224). Σε αυτή την δυνατή και πολύ δραματική φράση, ο Ηρόδοτος εκφράζει την εκτίμησή του για τον Λεωνίδα, όταν μας εξιστορεί το θάνατό του, και για τους πολεμιστές που έχασαν τη ζωή τους μαζί του. Ο Λεωνίδας ήταν αριστος. Σε μικρότερο βαθμό, οι υπόλοιποι ήταν ονομαστοί. Ο ίδιος ισχυρίζεται ότι έχει συγκεντρώσει πληροφορίες σχετικά με αυτούς τους αξίους άνδρες, σχετικά με όλους τους Τρικοσίους. Η εμφασισμένη καλύπτει ένα λογικό κενό στη σκέψη του: δηλώνει ότι έχει συγκεντρώσει πληροφορίες, ωστόσο αυτές δεν περιέχουν τα τελευταία κατορθώματα κάποιων, τις τελευταίες θετικές ή αρνητικές πράξεις ή ρήσεις των έξι εξ αυτῶν: των Διηνέκη, Αλφειού, Μάρωνος, Ευρίτου, Αριστόδημου και Παντίτη. Από πού άντλησε ο Ηρόδοτος τις πληροφορίες αυτές; Από επίσημο κατάλογο ή από προφανείς πηγές; Μήπως είδε τον επίσημο κατάλογο που αναγράφονταν στη στήλη και περιγράφονταν από τον Παυσανία (3.14); Μπορούμε να στοιχείσουμε σε συμπεράσματα από την ίδια τη μορφή της δήλωσης του Ηρόδοτου;

30 George C. Paraskeviotis. Agamemnon’s death in Seneca

Agamemnon was a mythical figure of high importance in the ancient world, whose life and death inspired several works in Greek and Roman literature. The main aim of this paper is to offer a detailed examination of the way in which Seneca uses and manipulates Agamemnon’s death in his tragedy Agamemnon. A parallel reading with earlier Greek literary treatments of the same incident will enable us, through close examination of the similarities and differences, to find out its literary role and function in the Roman tragic play.

Ο θάνατος του Αγαμέμνονα στον Σενέκα
Ο Αγαμέμνονας, του οποίου η ζωή και ο θάνατος αποτέλεσε πηγή έμπνευσης για σημαντικούς εκπροσώπους της αρχαίας ελληνικής και ρωμαϊκής λογοτεχνίας, υπήρχε προεδρούσα μυθική μορφή της αρχαιότητας. Στην παρούσα ανακοίνωση επιχειρούμε να εξετάσουμε τον τρόπο με τον οποίο ο Σενέκας χειρίζεται το θάνατο του Αγαμέμνονα στην τραγωδία Agamemnon. Σύγκριση και παράλληλη ανάγνωση με αντίστοιχες περιγραφές όπως αυτές αντλούνται από την προγενέστερη λογοτεχνική παράδοση (ελληνική και ρωμαϊκή) μας επιτρέπει να εντοπίσουμε ομοιότητες και διαφορές γύρω από την περιγραφή του θανάτου του ήρωα, και έτσι να κρίνουμε πιο ακριβώς τη δραματική τεχνική του Σενέκα, αλλά και τον ιδιαίτερο χειρισμό της έννοιας του θανάτου στις τραγωδίες του.

31 Nicolette Pavlides. Worshipping heroes: civic identity and the veneration of the communal dead in Archaic Sparta
This paper examines the role of hero cult in the creation of communal identity in Archaic Sparta. Through the analysis of the archaeological evidence it treats the gradual development of a Spartan community identity between the 7th and 5th centuries BC. This paper argues that heroic cult both influenced and was influenced by the communal consciousness arising at this time. In particular, it contends that the area of Limnai, rich in Geometric burials, became a focus of hero cult from the 7th century onwards. The cult site on Stauffert Street offers a paradigmatic example of this phenomenon.

Η λατρεία τοπικών ηρώων: η εκ νέου ανακάλυψη της ταφής και η ταυτότητα στη Σπάρτη
Η ανακοίνωση αυτή θα εξετάσει τους χώρους ταφής της Ύστερης Γεωμετρικής / πρώιμης Αρχαϊκής εποχής στη Σπάρτη, όπου εμφανίζεται η μεταθανάτια λατρεία των νεκρών από την Αρχαϊκή στην Ελληνιστική Περίοδο. Θα επικεντρωθούμε σε τρεις θέσεις: στο «Ηρώον» κοντά στον ποταμό Ευρώτα, και στα οικοδομικά τετράγωνα 98 και 101 της σύγχρονης πόλης της Σπάρτης. Η λατρεία των νεκρών ως ηρώων μέσα στον οικισμό της Σπάρτης από την Αρχαϊκή έως την Ελληνιστική Περίοδο. 32 Leonidas Petrakis. A child’s remembrance of living through the Nazi atrocity against the ‘118 Spartans’ in autumn 1943
I remember the Germans bombing the retreating British in 1941 and then entering Sparta on the main Tripolis-to-Sparta road, just two blocks from my home. Shame felt by the occupation, starvation, and deprivations culminated in the taking (with help from local collaborators) of over a hundred hostages in the autumn of 1943, and transporting them on open trucks; how the horrible news spread of the execution of 118 of them at Monodentri; seeing the blood-splattered bodies passing underneath my window on Hosios Nikon Street on their way to the cemetery; their burial directly across from my grandmother’s grave. I remember Sparta gripped by fear, when I spent a week during the summer of 1946 next to the Monodentri killing field where distant relatives kept their flocks; and fear of the junta in 1970 when I stopped at the neglected Monodentri monument to leave some flowers.
Οι αναμνήσεις ενός παιδιού που έζησε την ωμότητα των Ναζί κατά των '118
Σπαρτιατών' το φθινόπωρο του 1943
Θυμάμαι τους Γερμανούς να βομβαρδίζουν τους Βρετανούς ενώ οπισθοχωρούσαν το 1941 και μετά να εισέρχονται στο Μονοδέντρι. Η ντροπή της Κατοχής, η πείνα και οι στερήσεις έφτασαν στο αποκορύφωμά τους με τη σύλληψη -με τη βοήθεια ντοπίων δωσίλογων πάνω από εκατο αιχμαλώτων το 1943. Θυμάμαι να τους μεταφέρουν σε ανοικτά φορτηγά. Να διαδίδονται τα υφικά νέα της εκτέλεσης 118 εξ αυτών στο Μονοδέντρι. Είδα να μεταφέρουν τα αιματοβαμμένα κορμιά κάτω από το παράθυρό μου στην οδό Οσίου Νίκωνο καθ’ οδόν προς το νεκροταφείο. Θυμάμαι την ταφή τους ακριβώς απέναντι από το μνήμα της γιαγιάς μου. Θυμάμαι να τους μεταφέρουν σε ανοικτά φορτηγά. Να διαδίδονται τα φρικτά νέα της εκτελέσεως 118 εξ αυτών στο Μονοδέντρι. Θυμάμαι την ταφή τους ακριβώς απέναντι από το μνήμα της γιαγιάς μου.

33 Angeliki Petropoulou. The Spartan royal funeral in comparative perspective
The paper examines the religious nature and political significance of the honours granted to Spartan kings on their death, which are then compared with similar Achaemenid practices. We argue that all customs concerning compulsory mourning are exceptions in the context of Classical Sparta, as are the ekphora and burial of a king’s image, a rite necessitated by the fact that Leonidas’ body had been left exposed on the battlefield, rather than being repatriated and buried in Sparta. We then show that, although parallels between Spartan and Achaemenid compulsory mourning exist, the differences between the two are more significant than the similarities.

Η σπαρτιατική βασιλική ταφή μέσω συγκριτικής προοπτικής
Προτείνω να συγκριθούν οι Σπαρτιατικές βασιλικές ταφές στα χωριά 6.58 του Ηροδότου, Λακ. 15.9 του Ξενοφώντα και Άγης. 40.3 του Πλουτάρχου με αντίστοιχες επιβεβαιωμένες πρακτικές που παρατηρούνται σε σχέση με ταφές Αχαιμενιδών και ομηρικών βασιλέων ή μελών της βασιλικής οικογένειας. Θα υποστηριχθεί ότι: 1) η ανακήρυξη και επιβολή θρήνου για όλους τους υπηκόους του βασιλιά και η μεταφορά του σώματός του στην πατρική γη για ταφή ήταν σπαρτιατικές, περσικές και ομηρικές πρακτικές, και 2) οι Πέρσες είναι ανάμεσα στους ανώνυμους βαρβάρους της Ασίας που αναφέρει ο Ηρόδοτος ότι μοιράζονταν μαζί με τους Σπαρτιάτες το έθιμο του υποχρεωτικού θρήνου.

34 Eleni Psychogiou. Mycenaean and modern rituals of death and resurrection: comparative data based on a krater from Hagia Triada, Elis
The funeral representation on a Mycenaean krater from Palioboukovina in Elis contains certain obscure, ambiguous elements, which make its interpretation difficult. This paper attempts a new approach to the scene depicted, based on comparisons with modern magico-religious practices regarding death and resurrection, which form crucial stages of the symbolic cycle of time and vegetation. In conclusion it is suggested that the depiction on the krater may not be a funeral scene but the pictorial representation of some seasonal ritual of mourning for the death and rebirth of the god of vegetation, bed-fellow of the Great Mother-Goddess.

Τιμώντας τους μεταφυσικούς 'νεκρούς': αρχαίες και σύγχρονες θρησκευτικές τελετουργίες αναγέννησης με αφετηρία μια παράσταση σε μυκηναϊκό κρατήρα
Στα τέλη της δεκαετίας του 1990 αποκαλύφθηκε μυκηναϊκό νεκροταφείο στην Αγία Τριάδα του νομού Ηλείας, στη θέση «Παλιομπουκοβίνα». Στο δρόμο ενός από τους θαλαμωτούς τάφους βρέθηκε κεραμικό όστρακο με παράσταση πρόθεσης νεκρού και γυναικείου θρήνου, η αρχαιότερη στο είδος της μέχρι σήμερα. Κατά τους ανασκαφείς η παράσταση αφορά τη νεκρωτική τελετουργία για κάποιο μέλος της κοινότητας στην οποία ανήκε το νεκροταφείο. Παρατηρώντας τις λεπτομέρειες της παράστασης και συγκρίνοντάς την με σύγχρονα ελληνικά λατρευτικά δρώμενα για «θνήσκουσες» χθόνιες θεότητες ή βλαστικές δαιμονικές μορφές, θα υποστηρίξω ότι πιθανόν και η μυκηναϊκή νεκρωτική παράσταση να μην είχε κοσμικό αλλά θρησκευτικό χαρακτήρα.

35 James Roy. Anyte of Tegea and the other dead
The brief epigram in verse is found from the archaic period onwards, originally most often on inscriptions recording the dead on a tombstone or a dedication to a god. From the early Hellenistic period the use of the epigram was expanded to cover a much wider range of subjects. In this process of adaptation the sophisticated work of the Tegean poetess Anyte made a significant and original contribution, which included funerary epigrams for young unmarried women but extended also to epigrams for animals.

Η Ανύτη της Τεγέας και οι άλλοι νεκροί
Το σύντομο επίγραμμα σε στίχους που εμφανίζεται από την αρχαϊκή περίοδο και εξής, απαντά αρχικά συχνότερα σε επιγραφές επιτύμβιων στηλών ή προσφοράς σε θεότητα. Από την πρώιμη Ελληνιστική περίοδο η χρήση του επιγράμματος επεκτάθηκε ώστε να καλύπτει μεγαλύτερο εύρος θεμάτων. Σε αυτή τη διαδικασία αναπτυσσόμενης, το εκλεπτυσμένο έργο της Τεγεάτισσας ποιήτριας Ανύτης απέτελε μία σημαντική και αυθεντική συνεισφορά, η οποία περιελάμβανε ταφικά επιγράμματα για νεαρές ανύπαντρες γυναίκες, ενώ επεκτάθηκε και σε επιγράμματα για ζώα.

36 Yanis Saitas. Cemeteries and settlements of Mani in medieval and later periods: a second contribution
This paper presents some aspects of an ongoing research documenting the network of settlements and the corresponding cemeteries in the peninsula of Mani. Examples dating from the middle ages are presented, but mainly post-Byzantine and modern cases are discussed. Regional distribution, inner organization and the evolution of the cemeteries over time are examined. The typology of the memorial structures of successive periods is under documentation. The correspondence with the local community, patrilocal lineages and the social status of the family of the dead is analyzed. The first contribution was presented in the International Conference “Sparta and Laconia from prehistory to pre-modern”, Sparta 17-20 March 2005.

Κοιμητήρια και οικισμοί στη Μάνη στους μέσους και νεότερους χρόνους. Συμβολή δεύτερη.
Η ανακοίνωση αυτή παρουσιάζει ορισμένα στοιχεία μίας έρευνας σε εξέλιξη, με αντικείμενο την τεκμηρίωση του δικτύου των οικισμών και των αντίστοιχων κοιμητηρίων στη χερσόνησο της Μάνης. Περιλαμβάνονται παραδείγματα από τους μέσους χρόνους, κυρίως όμως από τους μεταβυζαντινούς και νεότερους χρόνους. Εξετάζονται ζητήματα της χωροταξικής τους κατανομής, της εσωτερικής τους οργάνωσης, της διαχείρισης τους εξέλιξης. Παρουσιάζονται στοιχεία σχετικά με την τυπολογία των ταφικών κατασκευών των διαφόρων περιόδων. Συσχετίζονται με τις αντίστοιχες τοπικές κοινότητες, τις πατροτοπικές ομάδες και την κοινωνική κατάταξη της οικογένειας των νεκρών. Η πρώτη σχετική ανακοίνωση είχε πραγματοποιηθεί στο Διεθνός Συνέδριο «Η Σπάρτη και η Λακωνία από τα προϊστορικά μέχρι τα νεότερα χρόνια», Σπάρτη 17-20 Μαρτίου 2005.

37 Nicholas Sekunda. IG V.1 1124. The dead of Geronthrai fallen at Mantinea
IG V.1 1124 from Geronthrai informs us that one Eualkes fell in the war at Mantinea. Since its first publication this inscription has been associated with the first battle of Mantinea in 418.
This causes problems as the perioikic contingents had not yet been incorporated into the Lakedaimonian army as a whole, and were absent from the battle. In this paper I shall propose that the inscription should be down-dated to 385, when the Lakedaimonian army, now incorporating the perioikoi, forcibly intervened to prevent the synoikism of Mantinea. Epigraphic parallels for the letter-forms will be offered.

Η επιγραφή IG. V.1 1124 από τις Γερονθώνες μας πληροφορεί πως κάποιος Ευάλκης έπεσε κατά τον πόλεμο στη Μαντίνεια. Από την πρώτη δημοσίευση η επιγραφή συσχετίσθηκε με την πρώτη μάχη της Μαντίνειας το 418. Ο συσχετισμός αυτός είναι προβληματικός καθώς τα στρατιωτικά τμήματα των περιοίκων δεν είχαν ακόμη εξ ολοκλήρου ενσωματωθεί στο στρατό των Λακεδαιμονίων, και απουσίαζαν από τη μάχη. Σε αυτή την ανακοίνωση εισηγούμαι πως η επιγραφή πρέπει να χρονολογηθεί στο 385 όταν ο στρατός των Λακεδαιμονίων, την εποχή που ενέταξε τους περιοίκους, παρενέβη δυναμικά με σκοπό να εμποδίσει τον συνοικισμό της Μαντίνειας. Θα παρατεθούν επιγραφικά παράλληλα για τη μορφή των γραμμάτων.

38 C. Nadia Seremetakis. Antiphony, ritual and the construction of truth
Based on my published ethnography on the Inner Mani, I will discuss the local way of “honouring the dead” and I will explore the implications of the model of antiphony in today’s society as well as in cultural studies.

39 Naya Sgouritsa. Remarks on the use of plaster in tholos tombs at Mycenae: hypotheses on the origin of the painted decoration of tombs in mainland Greece
The existing evidence indicates that plaster was originally used in the joints of the masonry of the dromos, façade and doorway of a few tholoi at Mycenae, especially in the constructions made of poros blocks, for the purpose of waterproofing. Besides the structural requirements, plaster was also used for decorative reasons. Tomb decoration, which is of several types, appears rarely. The plastered (simple or coloured) and frescoed LH tholoi and chamber tombs were located mainly in the Argolid and Boeotia. The decoration involved mostly the façade, sometimes the doorway and, in only a few cases, the chamber. This practise, though limited, could well have evolved as a special Helladic idea, arising from the need for ostentation and claim for status, as there are no Minoan prototypes. Undoubtedly, they belonged to the ruling class and the elite of the above regions.

Παρατηρήσεις για τη χρήση ασβεστοκονιάματος σε θολωτούς τάφους των Μυκηνών: υποθέσεις για την απαρχή της ταφικής διακόσμησης στην ηπειρωτική Ελλάδα
Από τις υπάρχουσες ενδείξεις προκύπτει ότι το ασβεστοκονίαμα χρησιμοποιούσε αρχικά σε τάφους για την αδιαβροχοποίηση κατασκευών κυρίως από πωρόλιθους, όπως διαπιστώνεται στους θολωτούς τάφους της μεσαίας ομάδας κατά Wace στις Μυκήνες Εν τούτοις, φαίνεται ότι παράλληλα εξυπηρετούσε και την αισθητική εικόνα τους. Η ταφική διακόσμηση οπωσδήποτε περισσότερη, εντοπίζεται κυρίως στην Αργολίδα, ενώ τέτοια παραδείγματα ανευρίσκονται επίσης στη Βοιωτία. Η ιδέα της διακόσμησης αυτής, που εμφανίζει τρεις τύπους, φαίνεται ότι είναι ελλαδικής προέλευσης, καθώς δεν υπάρχουν, προς το παρόν, μινωικά πρότυπα, και αναφέρονται από την ανάγκη επίδειξης κάποιων που θα ανήκαν στην άρχουσα τάξη των περιοχών όπου βρέθηκαν.

40 Georgios Steiris. Exemplary deaths in the Peloponnese: Plutarch’s study of death and its revision by Georgius Trapezuntius Cretensis

This paper seeks first to explore the way Plutarch of Chaeronea (46-119 AD), the eminent historian and philosopher of Middle Platonism, discussed exemplary deaths in the Peloponnese in his Moralia. Plutarch’s references are indicative of his theory on death, which is based on Greek philosophy. Secondly, this paper aims to present the attempt by Georgius Trapezuntius Cretensis, the Greek scholar of the 15th century, to reinterpret Plutarch’s views about exemplary deaths in the Peloponnese.

Υποδειγματικός θάνατος στην Πελοπόννησο

Αυτή η παρουσίαση στοχεύει, κατ’ αρχήν, στην διερεύνηση του τρόπου με τον οποίο ο Πλούταρχος, ο διακεκριμένος αυτός ιστορικός και φιλόσοφος της Μέσης Πλατωνικής, πραγματεύτηκε στα Ηθικά τους υποδειγματικούς θανάτους στην Πελοπόννησο. Οι αναφορές του Πλούταρχου είναι ενδεικτικές της θεωρίας του για το θάνατο, η οποία βασίζεται στην πλατωνική και στωική φιλοσοφία. Αδεύτερον, αυτή η ανακοίνωση έχει ως στόχο να παρουσιάσει την προσπάθεια του Γεώργιου Τραπεζόντιου, ενός Έλληνα λογίου του 15ου αιώνα που έζησε τα περισσότερα χρόνια της ζωής του στην Ιταλία, να επανεξεργαστεί τις απόψεις του Πλούταρχου σχετικά με τους υποδειγματικούς θανάτους στην Πελοπόννησο.

41 Anthi Theodorou-Mavrommatidi. A composite pendant in an EH I burial at the Apollon Maleatas site in Epidauros: an attempt at a biography

Accompanying the EH I burial of a young woman from the precinct of the sanctuary of Apollon Maleatas at Epidauros a necklace with a pendant was found. It is composed of an ovoid plaque of schist, fish teeth attached to its surface and two shell-fragments which framed the plaque on either side. This find raises a series of new research questions, from the most straightforward and practical, such as the use and source of the fish bones, and the technique of its construction, to the more complex, such as its significance as jewellery for the dead and its aesthetic value in the context of Early Helladic culture.

Σύνθετο περίαπτο από Πρωτοελλαδική Ι ταφή στο χώρο του Ιερού του Απόλλωνα Μαλεάτα στην Επίδαυρο: μία απόπειρα βιογραφίας

Σε ΠΕ Ι ταφή νεαρής γυναίκας από το χώρο του Ιερού του Απόλλωνα Μαλεάτα στην Επίδαυρο ήθελε στο ίδιο περίαπτο κόσμημα. Πρόκειται για σύνθετο αποτελεσμένη από ουανίδα δερματοστιξία και δύο θραύσματα οστρέων που πλαισίωναν συμμετρικά το πλακίδιο. Το εύρημα εγείρει πολλά νέα και ζητήματα προς έρευνα, από τα πιο απλά και πρακτικά, όπως τη χρήση και την προέλευση των δώρων ιχθυών, και την τεχνική κατασκευής του, ως τα πιο περίπλοκα όπως η σημασία του ως ταφικό κόσμημα και την αισθητική του αξία στο πλαίσιο του Πρωτοελλαδικού πολιτισμού.

42 Erika Weiberg. The invisible dead. The case of the Argolid and Corinthia during the Early Bronze Age

The possibility of archaeologists finding the dead of any society is ultimately dependent on the way in which groups of people in different cultures and times chose to handle the dead of their communities. For the Argolid and Corinthia during the Early Bronze Age, the mortuary record is very limited. How are we to interpret our failure to locate these Early Helladic dead? This paper sets out to analyse this problem through a consideration of the existing material and comparative Early Helladic data in the search of the missing majority and the meaning of the present few.
Οι αόρατοι νεκροί. Η περίπτωση της Αργολίδας και της Κορινθίας κατά την Πρώιμη Εποχή του Χαλκού

Οι πιθανότητες των αρχαιολόγων να ανακαλύψουν τους νεκρούς συνοδηγήσεις κοινωνιών εξαρτώνται εν τέλει από τον τρόπο με τον οποίο επέλεξαν να χειριστούν τους νεκρούς τους οι διάφορες ομάδες ανθρώπων διαφορετικών πολιτισμών και εποχών. Τα στοιχεία που αφορούν στα νεκροταφεία της Αργολίδας και της Κορινθίας της Πρώιμης Εποχής του Χαλκού είναι ισχυρά. Πώς μπορούμε να ερμηνεύσουμε την αποτυχία μας να εντοπίσουμε τους νεκρούς της Πρώιμης Ελλαδικής Εποχής; Προτείνω να αναλύσουμε το πρόβλημα, το διαθέσιμο υλικό και τα συγκριτικά ΠΕ στοιχεία στην αναζήτηση της χαμένης πλειοψηφίας των νεκρών και της σημασίας των λιγοστών νεκρών που έχουν βρεθεί.

Theodora Zampaki. The burial customs for Alexander the Great in Arabic historiography and the Alexander Romance

This paper aims at presenting a description and discussion of the burial customs as well as the ceremony of the funeral of Alexander the Great as presented in the ‘Universal histories’ of Arab historians and the surviving various versions of the Alexander Romance. The Arabic narratives as well as those of the Alexander Romance demonstrate that the preparation, laying out, mourning and lamenting, as well as the procession to the grave, are the main parts of the funeral rites of Alexander’s burial. On the whole, the narratives of the Arab historians reflect the infiltration of Greek ideas, beliefs and symbols into the world of the East. But it is characteristic that the Arab historians emphasize the ethical and moral elements of the various stories of Alexander’s death and burial.

Οι τελετές ταφής του Μεγάλου Αλεξάνδρου στην αραβική ιστοριογραφία και το Αλεξανδρινό Μυθιστόρημα

Στόχος της ανακοίνωσης είναι η περιγραφή και συζήτηση των ταφικών εθίμων καθώς και η τελετή της ταφής του Μεγάλου Αλεξάνδρου όπως παρουσιάζεται στις «Παγκόσμιες Ιστορίες» των Αράβων ιστορικών της πρώιμης και μέσης περιόδου της αραβικής ιστοριογραφίας. Η αφίγηση των Αράβων ιστορικών συγκρίνεται με αυτή του ελληνικού Αλεξανδρινού Μυθιστορήματος και των μεταφραστών του στα συριακά, αιθιοπικά και αρμένικα. Η τελετή για τον Αλέξανδρο συγκρίνεται επίσης με αυτή για τον Δαρείο Γ’- μια τελετή που αναφέρεται πως οργάνωσε ο ίδιος ο Αλέξανδρος. Τα συμπεράσματα που εξάγονται από αυτή την ανάλυση τονίζουν τα εθνογραφικά και τα πολιτικά στοιχεία πισώ από τις περιγραφές των συγγραφέων των πηγών μας.
Preface

The Conference ‘Honouring the Dead in the Peloponnese’ took place in Sparta 23-25 April 2009. It reflected a wide range of recent academic research in the Arts and Humanities on public and private commemoration. It is with great pleasure that we acknowledge the bodies which contributed so generously to make the conference possible: first and foremost the mayor and council of the city of Sparti, who showed unstinting support and generous backing; the J. F. Costopoulos Foundation and the British Academy also provided generous support and other participating organisations were the Pnevmatiki Estia of the Dimos Spartis and the University of the Peloponnese. We wish to thank the Public Library of Sparti and Mrs Eleni Tzinieri-Tzannetakou and the University of the Peloponnese for generously placing their lecture halls at our disposal. We were particularly pleased that a number of exhibitions and other cultural events were timed to coincide with the conference: ‘Studies on Laconia’. Book exhibition organised by the Central Public Library of Sparti; ‘The Naval Battle of Navarino: Multiple Readings. The Antonis Tantoulos Collection’ presented by the National Gallery of Greece - Annexe at Sparti and the General National Archives for the Prefecture of Lakonia; ‘In Memory of Pericles Panteleakis’ art exhibition organised by the Pnevmatiki Estia of Sparti; ‘Heroes of my Town’ competition open to the primary school pupils of Sparti. Particular thanks are due to the individuals who helped organise the Conference, Dr Chrysanthi Gallou and Dr Metaxia Papapostolou.

Following some popular media productions, the theme ‘Honouring the Dead’ has significant current reverberations in popular culture, especially in Greece. Purposely held in Sparta, the focal point of recent public attention, this conference sought to exploit such exceptional current interest as a starting-point for a more broad-ranging exploration of the theme across the Peloponnese from prehistory to the 21st century. The human responses to death and burial are highly-charged with emotion and yet also formalised and bound by convention. From the Iliad onwards these tensions have struck a note in Greek life, art and literature: the lament, the memorial and the iconography of death, the address over those killed in war, hero cult and the cult of relics, war monuments and literature.

Consequently, the aim of the conference was to bring together experts from a variety of disciplines (Classicists, Byzantinists, ancient and modern historians, ethnographers, archaeologists, art historians and social historians) to discuss a number of aspects where the combination of their different contributions might open up new vistas.

The conference was focused on Sparta and the Peloponnese to reflect the interests of the Centre for Spartan and Peloponnesian Studies, but also because that area offers a wealth of relevant material, varying greatly in nature and extending over the chronological span of the conference, from prehistory to the present, and thus allowed a range of different forms of analysis. Our vision in organising the conference was of a perspective that brought together in a single collage the insights of different disciplines across different times, in the hope that each image would reflect on and give new meaning to the others. The opportunity of publishing these papers allows us not only to present this picture to a wide readership, but also to achieve conjunctions and reflections which were not possible under the constraints of conference organisation.

In this preface we hope to draw out the connections implicit in the different papers. A simple review of the volume will immediately bring to mind the thematic interrelationships which formed part of the structure of the original conference.
Heroization, Politics and Heroic Death ranges from the Bronze Age to the Late Byzantine period. The term ‘hero’ can convey slightly different things, but touches on the semi-divine, ancestors of a legendary past, doers of great deeds as well as having the modern connotations of courage and daring. The prominence of heroes and their symbolic power can be traced through the creation and manipulation of cultural icon, national ideal and political emblem. Banou and Hitchcock explore this phenomenon through the ‘Lord of Vapheio’ on the basis of the spectacular funerary gifts which mark the identity of the dynasty buried in the tomb as closely linked with Minoan Crete. Konstantintidi-Syvridi and Paschalidis take a long perspective in viewing the cult of the dead and hero worship at Mycenae, underlining the landscape setting and how eloquently it spoke to visitors in the Classical and Hellenistic periods of an heroic past. Pavlides explores the worship of the dead as heroes within the settlement of Sparta, representing a local phenomenon closely bound up with the creation of communal identity in the Archaic polis. Burton also reflects on the relationship between divinity, the gods of the underworld and hero cult. The rediscovery of burials from the Archaic period onwards contributed to a local, Spartan identity expressed through the worship of “lesser” heroes. The contrasting histories of tomb and hero cult in Sparta versus Messenia (initially subject to but then liberated from Spartan domination) nicely juxtapose cases of the invention of both ‘official’ and purely local, small scale worship. Marantou takes up the theme of hero cult with an Arcadian emphasis and through Pausanias’s image of the past.

Other papers focus more closely on the Classical period, the celebration of the heroic dead. How typical were the Spartans in their reactions to mortality? Were their attitudes to death and burial customs really as ‘other’, if not unique, as Xenophon, Plutarch - and 'The 300' - make them out to be? Paradiso, Gengler and Petropoulou analyse closely the sources and the presentation of exemplary death in Sparta. Again identity and self-image are pictured in investigations of the insiders’ and outsiders’ views. Spartan royal funerals were exceptionally extravagant, their conduct uniquely embedded in Spartan tradition. The war dead were also commemorated exceptionally in Sparta. The 300 heroes of Thermopylae have been invented and reinvented time and again. Paradiso looks to Herodotus, who was fascinated by their celebrity and conducted his own ἱστορίη into their names and actions. Gengler places the festival of the Leonidea in the broader context of the transformation of Spartan traditions during the Imperial period and in relation to the image of Spartan history in the literature of that time. The war dead of Perioikic Geronthrai form the theme of Sekunda’s paper, while honourable death as perhaps seen through the distorting glass of Roman revisionism is the theme of Papapostolou’s article. Seneca’s version of Agamemnon’s death, as reported by Paraskeviotis, also reveals subtle changes of emphasis from Classical Greek to Roman Imperial perceptions. Later still, as Steiris explains, Plutarch’s treatment of exemplary deaths in the Moralia, was interpreted and reinterpreted in the light of Middle Platonism, and later Greek thought as exemplified in the writings of Georgios Trapezuntius and Gemistos Plethon. Zampaki illustrates how traditions in the Arab historians about the funeral of Alexander the Great relay on the one hand the narrative of events, but on the other put an emphasis on the ethical and moral lessons.

If in a negative way, the deliberate slighting of the dead is an acknowledgement of their power - the archaeological evidence for this treatment in late Mycenaean Achaia is assembled by Papazoglou-Manioudaki. The emotive impact of one such atrocity in a much more modern context is narrated by Petrakis.

Lament and Threnody. The moirology, the extemporised Maniot laments of S Greece, are a classic archetype of the dirge. Seremetakis sets the scene for this section, with Antiphony, Ritual and the Construction of Truth examining the presentation of the individual and the setting of the lament within the overall structure of the ritual. Katsoulakos, father and son, then make their portrayal all the more vivid thanks to their unrivalled archive of examples of moirologia, picking out, in particular, the historical and political context, on the one hand, and the kin relationship between deceased and singer on the other. Psychogiou takes the remarkable find of vase scenes depicting lamentation of the dead which have recently been recovered from Mycenaean tombs in Elis, to bridge the gap between remote past and present by confronting the similarities in the representation of ritual in past and present. The laying out of the corpse (prothesis) is treated by Fragkopoulou in the unexpected context of votives at Lakedaimonian sanctuaries. These popular themes are confronted with poetry of a more consciously literary conceit: Roy sketches poems by the Hellenistic poetess Anyte of Tegea including not only funerary epigrams for young maidens but extending also to the commemoration of animals. Kakourou-Chroni turns to the modern poet Nikiforos Vrettakos, tracing the development of his reflections on death from an early phase where he is ‘immersed in death’ to his late poetry transformed by his experiences of World War II where ‘death murders God’ but also ‘shines on the suffering world’.

The papers contemplating Memorials, Monumentality and Memory range from the prehistoric through historic periods to modern monuments. Marabea revisits the great tholos tomb at Kambos, close to the Laconian-Messenian border, a newly monumentalised tomb type of the early Mycenaean period. Papadimitriou considers a similar early part of the Mycenaean period, but with an emphasis on the symbolism of entrances in the passage from life to death. Sgouritsa also follows up the symbolism of the entrance and threshold rituals expressed materially in the architecture of the great Mycenaean tombs. Kokorou-Alevra turns to the Archaic period and funerary statuary in the Peloponnese, pointing to a major fault-line in the memorialisation of the dead between the city states of the NE Peloponnese and the rest of the region. She interprets the contrast as one grounded in the ideology of the Spartan state. Karapanagiotou and Koursoumis investigate anew the curious ‘menhir’ from Levidi in Arkadia, perhaps erected to mark the empty tomb of a king struck dead for his hubris.

The final theme of the conference looked to Burial, Identity and Representation, that is to say the commemoration (not to say reinvention) of those who have died, through material culture and iconography. The remote prehistory of this deeply human impulse is explored by Georgiadis in his review of fragmentary patterns recorded in the Mesolithic and Neolithic Peloponnese. Kossyva’s account of the Early Bronze Age cemetery at Delpriza, in the Argolid, adds precious new evidence to the recent flurry of new discoveries from the period; still, however, EBA burials are not well attested in the NE Peloponnese, a paradox explored by Weinberg. Fox uses the vessels from the heroic Grave Circles at Mycenae to conjure an image of feasting and drinking, which is then analysed to understand the status of feasting and socio-political fluidity in the period; looking to the same time and context Mathioudaki takes a different theoretical perspective of aesthetics and object biographies to consider the Early Mycenaean pictorial vases. Drakaki extends the analysis by exploring the seals accompanying high-status female burials of the Mycenaean epoch and Kalogeropoulos examines the symbolic power of the iconography of Palatial Style amphorae of the early Mycenaean period. Tomb form and social message is the focus of the publication by Lambropoulos, Moutzouridis and Nikolentzos of two recently-excavated cemeteries in Elis. Moschos illustrates the other end of the Mycenaean epoch by examining social status and burial practices during its final period after the collapse of the palaces; in a radically transformed social and political world, the imagery and material expression used in the past is still exploited, but exploited to tell a very different story. The interplay of communal, ethnic and even linguistic identity with ritual practice lies at the heart of Luce’s analysis of Early Iron Age grave types.
Dimakis takes the analysis later still in his review of individual and collective identity in Argos of the Classical and Hellenistic periods. Grigorakakis presents new cemetery evidence from the highly contested territory of the Thyreatis. Fritzilas looks to grave stelai of Hellenistic and Roman date from Arkadia, and how they attempt to commemorate and preserve the memory of the dead. Reinvented tradition and the concrete memorialisation of the family make for a fascinating counterpoint in the papers of Gavala and Saitas on recent historical monuments. Another aspect of the presentation of the dead is the use of jewellery to sculpt the body, this is explored by Theodorou-Mavromatidi for the Early Bronze Age and Louka for the Archaic period.

The argument which develops through this rich variety of illustration in no way underplays the strong emotion evoked by death – indeed this precisely gives the ritual and the symbolism their power, even though they are formalized and pressed into moulds of social and political conformity. In the papers that follow, we note the play and counterplay of political manipulation, the idealization of the dead and its use to model civic and moral virtue, the importance of ancestors and ancestry as symbols of identity and belonging, as well as display and conspicuous consumption and its dialectic between the community and the (family) group.

The range of different approaches and of different types of material does not allow any single theoretical viewpoint to dominate the contributions. Instead we have a mosaic of studies exploring in different ways how death was memorialised, and how the process reflected social aspirations of those who created the memorials, or sought to exploit the management of death for social or political purposes. Though all are drawn from the relatively limited area of the Peloponnese, the wealth of material offered by the Peloponnese means that the volume illustrates the issues currently being addressed in the study of death and the dead in the Greek world.

THE 'LORD OF VAPHEIO': THE SOCIAL IDENTITY OF THE DEAD AND ITS IMPLICATIONS FOR LACONIA IN THE LATE HELLADIC II–IIIA PERIOD

EMILIA BANOU AND LOUISE HITCHCOCK

INTRODUCTION

This paper examines the social identity of the deceased buried in the cist-grave of the tholos tomb of Vapheio, on the basis of the funerary gifts which accompanied him and the symbolism of the tomb’s architecture. It also discusses the socio-political developments on the mainland in the LHII period, which led to the rise of the palatial system of the LHIII period, as indicated from the important burials in this tomb. It combines, finally, the evidence from Vapheio with the picture we possess of the Eurotas valley in the LHII–III period, to conclude that Laconia must have been at the front of, if not playing a leading role in, the developments of the time around and shortly after the Mycenaean occupation of Knossos.

THE LORD OF VAPHEIO: A CHIEF OR A KING?

In 1888 Christos Tsountas excavated an important tholos tomb at Vapheio, one of the very few known tholos tombs and the only one thoroughly excavated so far in Laconia (Tsountas 1889) (FIG. 1). Although robbed, what little had been left on the bottom of the tholos points to the quality and the richness of its original furnishings, comparable with that of the richest early tholos tombs of Messenia and the Argolid. Fourteen seal stones, two silver pins, four gold plates – two in the form of a fish – two gold buttons, one bronze pin, two gold rings, twenty two gold beads, a wide array of beads and adornments in semi-precious stones and gold, fragments of ivory, pieces of three or four stone vases, and a few pieces of plain clay vases escaped the robbers' attention (FIG. 2).
What remains incomparable, however, is the contents of the cist grave dug into the floor of the tholos. Beyond the famous gold cups with scenes of bull...

capture executed in the highest artistic style of the time, that of LMI "Prince style", the deceased was accompanied by several weapons: one sword, two daggers with inlaid decoration, seven knives (which served either as weapons or as sacrificial equipment), three silver vases, two stone vessels, jewellery (three rings made of gold, bronze and iron respectively, tens of beads made of amethyst and amber), tens of seal stones, a set of scale pans and a set of lead weights and, finally, a unique set of metal objects associated with cultic sacrifice (FIG. 3).¹

More than one hundred years after their discovery, these finds constitute, we believe, a most suitable case and offer a most vivid and at the same time nuanced picture of the process which must have taken place in Mycenaean Greece during the LHII period, leading from chiefdoms to kingship, or, in other words, from local centres of power to the concentrated administration system represented by the palaces, with the wanax at its head.

¹ Kilian-Dirlmeier (1987, 199, fig. 2) provides a very useful plan with the exact position of each category of finds or each unique find, according to the report of the excavator. On this plan the careful, almost ritualistic, arrangement of the finds is more than obvious.
Emilia Banou and Louise Hitchcock

A limpid and coherent model of this process, based on a wide theoretical background, was put forward by Wright in 1995 (65–8). According to this model, the chief is defined as "the centre of the coordination of economic, social and religious activities" (1995, 66) of the territory he controls. A successful chief must be capable not only of ensuring the sustenance of the population he controls but also of maintaining the social balance among different elite groups and possible challengers to his power living inside or in the periphery of his territory, by distributing or redistributing the goods he owns. Some of these goods the chief may have acquired through contact with technologically more advanced societies – in the case of Mycenaean chiefs with the more advanced and sophisticated Minoan society – and also displayed as prestige objects, thus stressing his personal achievement. Moreover, he may use some of these in ritual activities to demonstrate his access to higher or supernatural sources of power, aiming at the establishment, reinforcement or legitimation of his own power. In this respect, the knowledge of belief systems and rituals of the foreign societies, from which the ritual objects he possesses come, is important, because it adds to his status and thus to the consolidation of his power. In a complex chiefdom indeed, the position of the chief is expressed architectonically in the formalization, even the monumentalization, of his place of residence or death, with emphasis put on the ritual sphere again.

The king, on the other hand, shares the aforementioned properties with the chief but his power is less personalized, as he heads a state, that is to say a formalized institution, with more or less strictly organised structures of government operated by specialized personnel in a hierarchical order. The difference between these two stages of political organization is explicitly expressed as follows, to use Wright’s words: A successful chief "may set the chiefdom on the road to the formation of a state" (Wright 1995, 67).

The ‘Lord of Vapheio’

Let us now return to the cist grave of the tholos tomb of Vapheio to see how it fits in with the above briefly presented model.

1. One seal stone, evidently attached to the deceased’s wrist, shows a man in a long garment with diagonal bars carrying an axe of ‘Syrian type’. An axe of just this type was actually found in the cist, laid supposedly beneath the feet of the deceased (FIG. 3, upper left), thus permitting us to equate beyond doubt the owner of the seal with the men depicted on two seal stones from Crete, wearing long garments with diagonal bars and carrying axes of ‘Syrian type’, which in all three cases are represented resting on the men’s shoulders (FIG. 4).

Of the two seal stones from Crete, one comes from Vatheia, about 15 km to the east of Herakleion, and the other from the palace of Knossos itself (Evans 1935, 414; Kilian-Dirlmeier 1987, 204, fig. 7); both seem to be of Neopalatial date. The men depicted have been characterized by Evans as ‘prince-priests’ (Evans 1935, 412–14). A religious identification is assigned to these figures by Marinatos (1986, 22) and Kilian-Dirlmeier (1987, 204), based primarily on the type of the garment. More recently, however, several scholars see them as representations of rulers, interpreting accordingly the axe they carry as a symbol of political status (Davis 1995, Koehl 1995, Rehak 1994). In the case of Vapheio, the interpretation of the axe as an emblem of rulership is supported by another seal stone found in the cist, depicting a man dressed in the same robe and leading a griffin, a well-known symbol of rulership in the Near East during the 2nd millennium BC (Sakellariou 1964, 257, n. 223). Rehak, who studied this seal stone carefully, demonstrated that the man depicted was wearing a seal stone around his wrist, as was actually the case with the dead man in the cist at Vapheio – with 22 seal stones indeed attached to his wrists (1994). He also cited a good parallel from tholos tomb 2 at Routsi, namely a partially preserved seal stone showing a man in the same long garment as the man on the seal from Vapheio (Pini 1992, 374, n. 345). This seal stone was one of twelve, accompanying the most important of those buried in the tomb (and probably also attached to his wrists), who was found extended on the floor of the tholos, surrounded, among others, with ten daggers and swords (Marinatos 1956, 204). The burial is dated to the LHII–IIIA period.

According to the above model of the process leading from chiefdoms to states, however, the two aforementioned interpretations are not to be...

2 There are more representations on seal stones from Crete and the mainland depicting men or women in the same long garment, holding different instruments, i.e. maces, a bow, or leading griffins. One seal stone depicting a woman holding a mace was found at the bottom of the tholos of Vapheio. For a complete list of such examples see Younger 1995, 162-3. Younger also dates the seal stone from Knossos in the LMI period on stylistic grounds (1995, 162). For the seal stone from Vatheia no date is given in the literature.

3 Manti-Platonos speaks of the axes (and the maces) as religious symbols, although she recognizes that similar implements were used as sceptres in Egypt and the Near East (1981, 82).

considered incompatible with each other. The seal representations rather imply that a sacrifice implement such as the fenestrated axe might well have functioned as a religious and as a political symbol at the same time, thus indicating the fusion of both religious and political power in one and the same person in the LHII period.

2. The cist grave of the tholos tomb of Vapheio also demonstrates the prominent economic role of the person buried in it, best exemplified in the sets of scale pans and lead weights which accompanied him, as well as in some other bronze items which can be associated with weighing, such as the discs, the fragments of chain, the hook and the four bronze nails with fragments of chain hanging from their heads (FIG. 3, upper centre). The accumulation of such items indicates the deceased’s capacity not only for acquiring and circulating both staples and luxury goods but also his authority for distributing them among members of the society he belonged to.4

3. The cist of the tholos tomb of Vapheio clearly shows the occupant’s ability to accumulate luxury or exotic items for their own sake too, best exemplified in his extensive collection of seals made of a great variety of semi-precious stones and carved with a variety of representations – most of them of a religious character – showing a high skill of execution. It was the variety and the high quality of the seal stones indeed, that led Vermeule to state that "the Vapheio prince was a collector and a connoisseur, like many nobles who were astonished and delighted at what the Cretans could do with their hands. No mere passion for the privacy which gems offer could have required him to own forty-one different types" (1972, 130).5

4. The Vapheio tholos is dated to the LH II–IIIA1 period based on vase fragments left in the dromos, probably by grave robbers, and goblets of the same date found in the cist (Dickinson 1977, 90; also Cavanagh and Mee 1998, 58). With only the 10.35 m diameter circular outline of the chamber and the 29.80 m long dromos preserved (Cartledge 2002, 36), Vapheio is neither the most elegant nor exciting of tholos tombs, yet it is among the earliest and the richest monumental Mycenaean tholoi (FIG. 1). Its mere existence suggests

4 Scale pans and weights are usually found in rich early burials of LBA Aegean, though very rarely together. According to Alberti (2003), this fact speaks against their practical use and, alternatively, for their function as indicators of the administrative control and status of the deceased. In the case of Vapheio, however, these interpretations are not mutually exclusive; indeed, if combined, they rather emphasize the economic factor of the deceased’s status and his family, who did not hesitate to accumulate objects of real value for mortuary purposes. Hitchcock and Chapin (2007) suggested that the scale might be connected to the acquisition and distribution of alluvial metals and the role of Palaiopyrgi in a trade network in the Eurotas Valley (see also Stos-Gale and Gale 1984: 61; Morris 1982).

5 An important indicator of status in LHI-II is the mortuary accumulation of metal vessels. A comparison among burials of this era brings the tholos tomb of Vapheio just to the second place after the shaft graves of Mycenae considered as a whole (Wright 1995, 69, footnote 35 and pl. XXVIII).
The ‘Lord of Vapheio’

that the mechanisms for Mycenaean palatial authority were already in place, as indicated by the ability and authority of the occupant or his relations to harness the resources and manpower needed for its construction (Hitchcock in press; Hitchcock and Chapin in press). It fits into part of a larger, eastern Mediterranean pattern, whereby monumental and/or wealthy monumental tombs precede or are associated with the appearance of monumental or palatial buildings as seen on Minoan Crete, Late Bronze Age Cyprus, and in the palace of the Omride dynasty at Samaria (Hitchcock in press) (FIG. 5).

Although its architecture is excluded from Wright’s (1978) important study of Mycenaean ashlar masonry and it can be observed that the chamber and dromos were built of small stones (FIG. 1), blocks in the tomb chamber were still hammer-dressed, while the doorway was built of large dressed stones with joints rendered in plaster (Waterhouse and Hope Simpson 1960, 76). A close examination of its interior construction clearly indicates worked masonry (FIG. 6). Ashlar first appeared in the Mycenaean world in the façades of tholos tombs, probably in late MH in Messenia (Wright 2006, 17, fig. 1.4) and no later than LH IIA in Mycenae (Wright 1978, 135), placing the Vapheio tholos among the earliest examples of ashlar technique on the mainland. In addition, cover slabs from the dromos utilized conglomerate (FIG. 1). Wright (1978, 229–35) observed that the use of conglomerate began in tholos tombs in LH IIA, as at the Tomb of Aegisthus. He regards its use outside of Mycenae as exceptional, and suggests that it was employed for “special monumental constructions.” It is possible that some of this stone came from the Vapheio/Paliopyrgi quarry, accidentally discovered by Bob Bauslaugh and to be published by the authors with Anne Chapin (FIG. 7). Structurally, Waterhouse and Simpson (1960, 78, footnote 58) link the Vapheio tomb to the Panagia Tomb at Mycenae. The Panagia tomb is the earliest of Wace’s Group Two, which is distinguished from the earlier Group One by the use of ashlar and the introduction of the relieving triangle. Similar to the Vapheio tomb, the Panagia tomb chamber was built of rubble masonry, while the doorway was built of hammer dressed blocks (Wace 1921–3, 316–20).

Wright (1987, 173) suggests that one method of assessing the importance of burial facilities is to measure and analyze the effort expended on the preparation of a burial. He notes that the reconstruction of the time and energy devoted to tomb construction are easier to reconstruct than ritual and deposition, which are less easily recoverable expenditures. In terms of size, Cavanagh and Mee (1998, 45) place Vapheio in the upper quartile range. Moreover, it has one of the longer dromoi, in excess of 15m (Cavanagh and Mee 1998, 46). In addition to the effort expended on the construction of such an edifice, the acquisition and workmanship of the grave goods also indicate a substantial expenditure of effort, as already stated.

In addition to its construction details, the Vapheio tholos would have been all the more conspicuous for its location on the top of a hill rather than cut out of the base of the slope. The east-facing dromos was clearly oriented on Mt. Taygetos (FIG. 8) and it is possible to suggest that this is an example of competitive emulation of the Minoan practice of orienting the central courts of the palaces on large, important mountains (Hitchcock 2007).

From the combination of the above evidence, it can reasonably be concluded that: The occupant of the cist of Vapheio was a person of high religious, economic and social authority. He was acquainted with the ritual practices and presumably the beliefs of Minoan religion and he was not at all backward in displaying his contact with Minoan society through the accumulation of ritual and luxury items of Minoan provenance or inspiration.

6 Continued weathering suggests that time is running out for a systematic and detailed documentation of this important monument, which is lacking a state plan and which is historically significant in the development of tholos tomb technology.
His differentiation was also architectonically emphasized through the monumentalization and orientation of his mortuary place. Thus, according to the model of the transition from chiefdom to state presented above, the important occupant of the cist must have been a chief ruling over a complex chiefdom. What about the probability, however, that he was a king?

Addressing this question requires us to put the case of Vapheio in its wider context of time and space:
1. The date of the tholos tomb as a whole to the LHIIA period is based on one of the four decorated goblets found in the cist grave, which is illustrated in the publication of Tsountas (1889, pl. 7:19) (FIG. 9) and recently upheld by Mountjoy (1999, 258, fig. 84:34), without any further comment. A search for Laconian and Peloponnesian parallels shows that the goblet from Vapheio constitutes a fine example of its kind, best seen in its balanced shape, which, however, finds no exact parallel among LHIIA and IIB goblets (Mountjoy 1999, 97, fig. 16 and 102, fig. 17 from the Argolid; 205, fig. 63, 207, fig. 64 and 215, fig. 67 from Korinthia; 257, fig. 84 and 260, fig. 85 from Laconia and Kythera; 376, fig. 130 from Elis); so its date cannot be considered as fixed. In general, a date in the LHIIA period is indicated by its elliptical rather than rounded shape (Furumark 1941, 62, fig. 16), while a date in LHIIB is indicated by the simplified version of ogival canopy, which constitutes the main motif of its decoration (Mountjoy 1999, 214). In our opinion, this goblet seems to represent a conservative example of the LHIIB goblet and thus its date very late in the LHIIA or in the beginning of the LHIIB period is very probable.7

An amphora of ‘palatial style’ was also reconstituted from fragments probably found in the dromos of the tholos tomb (Bosanquet 1904, 318-319 Pl. XI). Its decoration is unique (Kalogeropoulos 1998, 137), in the way, we believe, it combines floral and marine motifs of the Minoan repertoire with a vertical wide stripe of abstract ones. The amphora probably belonged to the furniture of the burials laid on the floor of the tholos, although the possibility that it accompanied the dead of the cist cannot be excluded. Its decoration shows the assimilation of the LMIB ‘Marine style’ to such a high degree, that it could allow the painter to create a vase with a character of its own. This decoration also offers a hint for the date of the vase very late in the LHIIA or early in the LHIIB period.

7 An amphora of ‘palatial style’ was also reconstituted from fragments probably found in the dromos of the tholos tomb (Bosanquet 1904, 318-319 Pl. XI). Its decoration is unique (Kalogeropoulos 1998, 137), in the way, we believe, it combines floral and marine motifs of the Minoan repertoire with a vertical wide stripe of abstract ones. The amphora probably belonged to the furniture of the burials laid on the floor of the tholos, although the possibility that it accompanied the dead of the cist cannot be excluded. Its decoration shows the assimilation of the LMIB ‘Marine style’ to such a high degree, that it could allow the painter to create a vase with a character of its own. This decoration also offers a hint for the date of the vase very late in the LHIIA or early in the LHIIB period.
Accordingly, the immediate successors of the deceased in the cist must have been buried in the tholos within the LHIIB period.

2. The bronze artefacts buried with the deceased of the cist grave find close parallels in the bronze objects accompanying the burials of the Sellopoulo Tomb 4 near Knossos, especially burial III: Comparable are not only the number and the diversity of such objects but also special categories of finds, as the scale pans (burials I, II and III: Popham and Catling 1974, 231, fig. 19:239) and the swords with spiral decoration (burial II: Popham and Catling 1974, 228, fig. 17). Apart from these, a ring with inlaid decoration (burial I: Popham and Catling 1974, 212, fig. 11:j) and a gold spherical bead with granulation (burial I: Popham and Catling 1974, pl. 36:c and d) from the same tomb find striking parallels in finds from the bottom of the tholos of Vapheio (Tsountas 1889, pl. 7:7 and 9). Worth mentioning is also the astonishing similarity of a seal stone depicting a pair of bulls (Popham and Catling 1974, 218, fig. 14:A) with the seal stones nos. 240 and 241 illustrated in CMS I.
The ‘Lord of Vapheio’

(Sakellariou 1964, 273–4), found on the floor of the tholos of Vapheio (Tsountas 1889, pls. 10:9 and 10), as well as that of the well known gold ring from Sellopoulo depicting a cult scene (Popham and Catling 1974, 218, fig. 14:D) with the gold ring from the cist grave of Vapheio, both showing the importance laid on religious symbolism (Tsountas 1889, pl. 10:40) (FIG. 10). Tomb 4 of Sellopoulo is dated to the LMII–IIIA period (Popham and Catling 1974, 254–5). This comparison widens the time span for the burials on the floor of the tholos tomb of Vapheio to the LHIIIA period, thus making their deposition in LHIIB–IIIA plausible. Accordingly, a date in LHIIB for the cist grave is reasonably to be assumed.

3. Finally, a secondary though noteworthy support of the aforementioned dating is offered by the two seals showing a pair of recumbent bulls mentioned above, presumably accompanying the later burials of the Vapheio tholos tomb. A recent study of this seal motif, of apparently Minoan origin, has shown that it was very probably preferred by elite individuals buried in large chamber tombs or tholoi of LHIIB–IIIA1 date (Drakaki 2005–06).

This is a very important period for the Aegean, as it coincides with the decline of the Minoans and the possible Mycenaean takeover of Knossos. In fact, Tomb 4 of Sellopoulo mentioned above was very probably intended for warriors of Mycenaean origin who settled at Knossos around 1450 B.C. (Alberti 2004, with previous bibliography). Its similarities with finds of the Vapheio tholos tomb imply that the elite of Vapheio were in pace with – if not leading – the most important events of their time. Perhaps we would not go too far if we imagined the deceased from Vapheio taking part in a military expedition against Crete – and possibly dying abroad, which could also explain the absence of any skeletal remains in the cist.

So, if not a king already, the apparently close ties of the deceased in the tholos tomb of Vapheio with Crete at such a critical period for the development of Mycenaean Greece as LHIIB show that the chief to whom the cist grave of the Vapheio tholos belonged had at least succeeded in setting his chiefdom on the road to the formation of a state in the heartland of Laconia, to which we now must turn, if we are to explore the boundaries of his power.

THE EUROTAS VALLEY IN THE LHII–IIIA PERIOD

8 Apart from Vapheio, which offered two examples, seals with the motif of a pair of recumbent bovines on the mainland come from tholos tomb 2 of Routsi and the tholos tomb of Nichoria in Messenia, from chamber tombs 78 and 515 of Mycenae, chamber tomb 2 of Dendra and the chamber tomb of Koukaki in Athens (Drakaki, 2005-06). In this study, however, the Vapheio tholos tomb is mistakenly included in the burial assemblages without military grave goods, which weakens the whole argument. With tholos tomb 2 of Routsi Vapheio shares another feature too, namely the seal with a man in a long garment, probably bent around the wrist of his most important deceased (see in the text above).
The early Mycenaean presence in the Eurotas valley is mainly attested through surveys or limited excavation. The settlement on Paliopyrgi just to the south of the tholos tomb of Vapheio, reasonably associated with it, has been only partially and rather hastily excavated. According to the few preliminary remarks available, Paliopyrgi was occupied from LHI but the state of the fragmentary walls which came to light on the top of the hill prevented the excavator from further investigation of the site. According to preliminary reports and personal information given by the excavator (Spyropoulos 1982, 112), Paliopyrgi was occupied during the whole Mycenaean era, with its floruit put in the LHIIIA2 and the LHIIIB2 periods. Waterhouse and Hope Simpson considered Paliopyrgi as the most important Mycenaean settlement and a strong candidate for the location of a palace, with sherds strewn in a surface of 200,000 sq m (Waterhouse and Hope Simpson 1960, 78).

About 7 km north-east of Vapheio rises the hill of the Menelaion. At the northern end of the hill, excavations of the British School at the beginning of the last century brought to light a complex of rooms known as ‘Dawkins House’, after its excavator (Dawkins 1910). Resumed excavations in the 70s and 80s under the direction of Hector Catling here and on the Aetos Hill at the southern end of the same ridge, led to the following results: The first phase of ‘Dawkins House’ saw the construction of a mansion (‘Mansion 1’) dating to the LHIIB period. Mansion 1 was replaced by another one (‘Mansion 2’) in the LHIIIA1 period, with a different orientation, which may have continued in use, damaged or abandoned in LHIIIA2. Its core (rooms I–IX) may have been rebuilt (‘Mansion 3’) in the LHIIIB1 period. It was burnt and finally abandoned in the LHIIIB2 period. On the Aetos Hill, a monumental building erected in the LHIIB period (‘Building B’) continued to exist at least till the LHIIIB period, though reduced in size, after having undergone alterations in the LHIIIA1 and 2 periods. In the LHIIIB period another building (‘Building A’) was built at a short distance from it and abandoned in the next period. A monumental terrace (‘Great Terrace’), erected on the Aetos

9 Data are summarized in Banou 1996, 34-6. The 125 sherds in the BSA archive that were collected by Waterhouse and Simpson have been studied by Hitchcock, Chapin, and Banou. Of these, 59 belonged to EH hospitality ware, such as bowls and sauceboats, suggesting that Paliopyrgi was an important site from the Early Bronze Age onwards. Despite the fact that there is substantial erosion on the summit of Paliopyrgi, with one or more top layers of soil eliminated, the growth pattern of surface vegetation demarcates a clear pattern of walls and rooms (Hitchcock and Chapin 2007). It may be hypothesized, based on our archival research that these belong to an important Early Helladic structure, but only further excavation can confirm this with any certainty.

10 These are according to the final publication (Catling 2009). The most extensive preliminary reports, which also summarize previous research are found in Catling 1978, 1981, 1986 and 1992. Data are also summarized and discussed in Banou 1996, 26-31.

11 According to the excavator, "evidence for the occupation on the Menelaion Hill in LHIIIA2 and B1 remains inconclusive" (2009, 452).
The ‘Lord of Vapheio’

Hill probably in the LIIIIB period, separated the two buildings until it collapsed at the end of LIIIIB2. Occupation continued among its ruins into the LIIIIC Middle period.

Kilian (1987, 121), Barber 1992 (13, 22) and Catling (1992, 429–31; 2009, 448) considered ‘Mansion 2’ as a forerunner of the Mycenaean palace, as we know it in the LIIIIB period, leaving the monumental building on the Aetos Hill out of discussion. Going deeper into this question would be beyond the scope of our paper; it suffices to point out that on the Menelaion ridge in the LII period stood at least two monumental buildings, which were part of a large settlement – judging by the dispersion of sherds over an area of 300,000 sq m (Catling 2009, 444) – rivaling the settlement on Paliopyrgi. According to the present state of evidence, however, Paliopyrgi, in contrast with the Menelaion Hill, where the principal buildings are located (Catling 2009, 445), seems to have been inhabited during the whole Mycenaean period and, most importantly, during the critical time for the rise of the Mycenaean states in the LIIIA2 and LIIIB1 periods, when at least part of the settlement on the Menelaion had probably been abandoned.

But Paliopyrgi was not the only settlement flourishing in the lower Eurotas valley in the LII–IIIA period. About 4.5 km to the southeast, on the opposite (left) bank of the Eurotas river, rises the hill of Vouno Panayias, where an important Mycenaean settlement is located (FIG. 11). According to pottery studied from the site, this settlement seems to have been inhabited during the whole Mycenaean period too (Banou 2009, 77–9, 80–3). The same is also true for Ayios Vassileios, a low hill rising just above the intersection of the national Sparta–Gytheio road and the road to Xirokambi, about 4.5 km to the southwest of Paliopyrgi as well. Indeed, the settlement of Ayios Vassileios seems to have been just as big as the settlement at Paliopyrgi and, judging from surface finds alone, the most important site in the Eurotas valley during the LIII period at least (Banou 2006).

Presumably because it lacks the ‘megaron’-like core of Mansions I and II. It must be noted, however, that a much smaller part of Building 2 is preserved. Otherwise it is totally comparable with the Mansions.

The cultural contrast, as stated by Catling (2009, 450), between the owner(s) of the Vapheio tholos tomb and the resident(s) of Mansions I and 2 on the Menelaion Hill in favour of the latter, is, in our opinion, exaggerated, not least because of insufficient evidence: We do not know either where the important deceased of the Vapheio tholos tomb lived or where the resident(s) of the Menelaion Hill were buried.

When the present article was prepared for publication, a chance find of a Linear-B fragment and the discovery of two more in a rescue operation of the 5th Ephoreia of Antiquities were announced, thus confirming the importance of the site already emphasized by the author in several instances (Banou 1997; 1999, 65; 2006; 2009, 84).
All four settlements mentioned so far are visible from each other and, with the exception of the Menelaion, which lies further to the north, they are no more than 4.5 km apart (FIG. 12). The settlement of Paliopyrgi then, to which the tholos tomb of Vapheio belongs, was only one of the important settlements flourishing in the Eurotas valley already in the LHII–III period; it actually constituted a part of the close net of important settlements of that period in the area.

CONCLUSIONS

From the above evidence, the following conclusions may be drawn:

The occupant of the cist in the Vapheio tholos was an important ruler, having established, at least in the transition from the LHIIA to the LHIIB period, significant contacts with Minoan Crete. These contacts permitted him and his immediate successors to stand at the forefront of the developments in their time on the mainland, having by that time placed the territory they controlled on the way to becoming a state. The seat of these rulers was presumably on Paliopyrgi. They had to rival, however, at least two other local centres of power, namely Vouno Panayias and Ayios Vassileios, at a close distance. How they would have succeeded in finding and maintaining their position remains to be elucidated through systematic research and excavation of all three sites. We believe that studying the relations of such local centres at such a critical period as LHII–IIIA would be of great value for understanding the process which led to the rise of Mycenaean states in the Argolid as well, where the same pattern of important, intervisible Mycenaean sites can be observed.
