What to do now you have submitted your application

Once submitted, our Admissions Office will consider your application and will aim to issue an offer to you within a period of three weeks. If any information on your application is missing, or if you do not fulfil the entry criteria for the course straight away, then the Admissions team will contact you via NopttinghamHub and ask you to provide more information to support your application. This may result in an offer being delayed.

Once a decision has been made regarding your application, the Admissions Office will update your NottinghamHub portal and email you to let you know the outcome. This will either be that your application has been successful and so you have been made an offer to study your chosen course with us, or that unfortunately your application has been unsuccessful.

If your application has been successful, then you will be issued with an offer letter that you should read carefully and keep safe. The offer letter will outline all of the details of the course. If there are any errors, please contact the Admissions Office as soon as possible in order for these to be corrected.

If you receive an offer, you will need to log on to NottinghamHub to 'Firmly Accept' this. By firmly accepting, you are letting the university know that you intend to take up the place on the course that has been offered to you.

On your offer letter it is likely that a number of conditions will be outlined, and it is important that these are fulfilled before the start date of the course, otherwise unfortunately you will be unable to begin. If you have any queries about the conditions on your offer, or what action is required from you, please contact the Admissions Office and they will be able to assist you. Their contact information will be on your offer letter.

Please see below descriptions that will give you more information about what your offer means:

- Conditional – A conditional offer means that the Admissions Office still need to see documents from you in order to fulfil the conditions that have been outlined on your offer. You should work to remove these conditions by sending in all documentation that has been requested from you.
- Unconditional – This status means that you have submitted everything required in order to satisfy the conditions that were detailed on your offer letter, and you are now ready to begin the course and take the next steps to become a registered student.

What to do once you are holding an unconditional, firmly accepted offer

Approximately three weeks before the start date of the course, you will be expected to complete online registration. You will be sent information about this from the Admissions Office.

Once you have completed registration, then you are ready to begin the course.
