

University of Nottingham

UK | CHINA | MALAYSIA

Research Symposium: International Migration and Maternity

Thursday 1 February 2018
9am-3pm

Highfield House (A01)
University Park
University of Nottingham

The UK is in a period of super-diversity that is new and more diverse groups are resident in the UK, creating challenges for the NHS. Addressing health inequalities is a major goal of current NHS directives. Join us as we share findings from two National Institute for Health Research funded studies at this event.

Further information and to book:
rs-imm.eventbrite.co.uk

This project is funded by the UK National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) Health Services and Delivery Research Programme (Grant No. HS&DR-15/55/03). Along with funding, NIHR also contributed in peer reviewing the funding proposal.

FRM239409

National Institute for Health Research

Ethnicity and Health
Collaborative Research Program