LET'S BE CLEAR ON CONSENT

Your guide to sexual consent: information, help and support.

The image shows three handprints in a light yellow color on a yellow background with diagonal lines. The handprints are arranged in a triangular pattern, with one at the top left, one at the top right, and one at the bottom center. The word "CONSENT" is written in large, bold, yellow capital letters at the bottom left of the page.

CONSENT

This booklet provides information about sexual consent and where to go for help and support if you have experienced sexual assault or rape.

The University of Nottingham is committed to promoting and providing, a safe and respectful environment for every member of its community, by challenging harassment and abuse, underpinned by the Dignity at Nottingham Policy and Code of Conduct.

Sexual violence is a serious issue which everyone needs to know and understand. We all have a role to play in advocating and promoting a safe environment at The University of Nottingham.

Please note: due to the subject matter of this leaflet it does contain explicit sexual terms defining sexual assault and rape.

In January 2015, a national newspaper reported that a recent poll showed half of female undergraduates know someone who had experienced sexual assault, ranging from groping to rape.

The University of Nottingham has created this guide to advise and support our students, and give information on where to get help from the University and local services.

CONSENT?

Consent

What is sexual consent?

Sexual consent is a voluntary agreement to engage in sexual activity, having the freedom and capacity to make the choice.

Sex without consent is a crime; known as rape and sexual assault.

It's OK to consent to one form of sexual activity but not to another. Consent can be withdrawn at any time.

It's not enough to assume someone wants sex, consent should be sought and freely given with no coercion.

LET'S BE CLEAR ON CONSENT

Consent

Make sure your partner is consenting. If in doubt stop and get confirmation.

The law

The law is clear – having any kind of sex without getting consent is rape or sexual assault.

Rape

According to the law, only a man can commit rape (as the penetration has to be with a penis). However, both men and women can be raped. A rape can occur within a relationship or within a marriage.

The law says:

'A' is guilty of rape if:

- he intentionally penetrates the vagina, anus or mouth of 'B' with his penis;
- 'B' does not consent to the penetration, and
- 'A' does not reasonably believe that 'B' consents

Assault by penetration

A male or female commits assault by penetration if they intentionally penetrate the vagina or anus of another person with a part of the body or anything else, without their consent.

'A' is guilty of assault by penetration if:

- 'A' intentionally penetrates the vagina or anus of another person ('B') with a part of their body or anything else,
- the penetration is sexual,
- 'B' does not consent to the penetration, and
- 'A' does not reasonably believe that 'B' consents

Sexual assault

Is when a male or female intentionally touches another person sexually without his or her consent.

Sexual assault is when any male or female ('A')

- intentionally touches another person ('B'),
- the touching is sexual,
- 'B' does not consent to the touching, and
- 'A' does not reasonably believe that 'B' consents

Myth-busting

A myth is a false idea that many people believe to be true. Myths are problematic because they present a distorted view of the realities of sexual violence.

Myths around sexual consent can lead us to:

- blame victims
- cause us to doubt what the victim says
- prevent us from addressing the real issues and sources of the problem

Only strangers sexually assault.

Most assaults and rapes are committed by someone that is known to the victim – a friend, acquaintance, partner, or ex-partner.

Agreeing to do something sexual means you have agreed to do everything else as well.

Consent to do one thing does not automatically imply you consent to do other things. It's OK to say no at any time.

Rape is caused by the perpetrator's uncontrollable sexual urge.

Men are fully able to control their sexual urges. Rape is an act of power and control not sexual gratification.

People who are under the influence of drugs or alcohol are asking for it.

It is not a crime to drink, but it is a crime to target someone who is not capable of consenting to sex though drink. Responsibility lies with the perpetrator.

Men can't get raped and women don't sexually assault.

Rape is defined as penetration with a penis. Penetration with something other than a penis is sexual assault by penetration.

Therefore, men can get raped by other men and women can sexually assault.

If a woman wears provocative clothing she is partly to blame for being sexually assaulted.

This type of myth blames the victim for what happened instead of the perpetrator who chose to commit the crime.

Women often falsely accuse men of sexual assault or rape.

False allegations of rape and sexual assault are rare. There is a lot of evidence to suggest that rape and sexual violence is a vastly under reported crime.

Getting help

If you have been sexually assaulted:

- Try to be somewhere that feels safe
- You might be in shock, so try to keep warm
- See if a friend or someone you trust can be with you
- Talk to someone about what has happened

You may not want to report it straight away but you may change your mind:

- Keep the clothes you were wearing and don't wash them, they may be used as evidence for the investigation
- Try not to shower as there may be evidence which the police can use

CONSENT

If you've been sexually assaulted or raped (recently or in the past), there are specialist services that can help.

Police

In an emergency call 999 immediately.

In any other situation call the non-emergency number, 101.

A police officer specially trained to help with sexual offences will accompany you to the Topaz Centre (Nottinghamshire's sexual assault referral centre).

You can ask the University Security Team to contact the police on your behalf.

If you are at immediate risk and on campus, you should ring Security immediately on 0115 951 8888.

If you are unsure about what to do, you can talk to Topaz about self-referral on 0845 600 1588. Self-referral means that evidence can be collected by Topaz and released to the police at a later date, giving you the time to consider the best course of action for you whilst protecting evidence to support any potential future investigation.

Remember that it's not your fault, you're not to blame, and you're not alone.

Help is at hand.

The University is here to support you.

Although we cannot investigate serious sexual assault and rape, we will:

- listen and respond to students disclosing sexual assault and rape
- support students to access specialist help and support and where possible empower students to report
- respond to disclosures in a way that supports any potential criminal investigation
- take action to protect students and the wider community (safeguarding)

If you are not sure what has happened to you, and how it might be viewed, (for example, have I been sexually assaulted?) please speak to someone at the University so they can support you. You may initially want to speak to a staff member you know for guidance, but if you are still unsure about who to contact and you wish to speak to a member of the welfare team for advice, email consent@nottingham.ac.uk, and one of the team will get back to you as soon as possible. Please note this email address is not a helpline and if you need to speak to someone urgently please contact the Police, Topaz or the University Security Team (contact details overleaf).
