

Learning a Language in Liberal Arts

Never studied a language before or studied at GCSE but want to take it further?

Explore the language at university with an introductory 40 credit course in your first year.

By your second year, you will be taking a 40 credit course with other language students.

In your third year, you can opt to stay in Nottingham to take other courses or study abroad to enhance your language skills and turn your degree into a 4 year programme.

In your fourth year, you can continue to take language options to develop your skills.

Studied a language at A-Level and want to develop your knowledge?

Enhance your language skills at university with a specialist 20 credit course in your first year.

By your second year, you will be taking a 40 credit course with other language students.

In your third year, you can opt to stay in Nottingham to take other courses or study abroad to enhance your language skills and turn your degree into a 4 year programme.

In your fourth year, you can continue to take module options to develop your skills.

Never studied a language before or just want to enhance your knowledge of a language studied at GCSE or A-Level?

Develop your language skills at university with a focused 10 credit course in your first year.

By your second year, you can continue to build your skills with further 10 credit courses.

In your third year, you can take specialist 10 credit courses that lead up to near native speaker competence.

Throughout your degree you can learn a new language or enhance your skills.