A survey in Nottingham between 2016 -18 found that 37.6% of misogyny hate crimes happen on public transport.
Unbelievable...
Too believable...
We've all experienced harassment.

OMG!

Last week a taxi driver said I could have a lift home for a special favour.

I was walking down the street in broad daylight and a man said, ‘what you got under there, love?’

Later...

Can you pick me up?

I'm a bit busy. Can't you get the tram?

Susie?

It happened again.

Stay put. I'll be right there.

A survey in Nottingham between 2016-18 found that in terms of threatening behaviour or language, 35.9% of women experienced sexual assault and 28.9% were told or asked to smile.
It just makes me so angry this keeps happening. We need to call the police – you know their 101 phone reporting number.

Yes they will. This is a hate crime. It is sexual assault. Imagine if the same thing happened to one of your friends?

It has happened to them!

A couple of weeks later.

Hello gorgeous, fancy a shag?

Mate, pack in, show some respect!

Over 300 women have reported misogyny hate crimes since Nottinghamshire Police brought in the policy. Help change the everyday lives of women and girls by calling out such behaviour and reporting gender-based hate crime to the Police.
