

Public Procurement and Aid Effectiveness
A ROADMAP UNDER CONSTRUCTION

edited by Annamaria La Chimia & Peter Trepte

Public Procurement: Global Revolution IX was the platform for the launch of

PUBLIC PROCUREMENT AND AID EFFECTIVENESS
A roadmap under construction

edited by

Annamaria La Chimia
and
Peter Trepte

Public Procurement Research Group
University of Nottingham

This book explores the links between procurement and aid effectiveness and examines the various initiatives that have been undertaken by the international community to make aid more effective. While the on-going international reform process for development aid procurement will shape the future success of development aid, little is known about the shape, form, governance and power imbalances that underpin it. Reforms tend to be piecemeal and respond to isolated problems. The absence of a broader academic debate has resulted in a limited framework and restricted parameters with which to address the problems raised analytically.

A workshop to launch the book...

This is the gap in the literature that this book seeks to fill. Going further than any current work on procurement and development aid, the book will use current debates on aid effectiveness and procurement to explore the economic, political and legal relationship between procurement and aid effectiveness.

The purpose of the book is to provide a framework for future discussion and prompt some debate on where we have reached and where we need to go in achieving effectiveness in development aid procurement.

Signing a copy at the conference

Published: 08-08-2019
Format: PDF eBook (?)
Edition: 1st
Extent: 416
ISBN: 9781509922444
Imprint: Hart Publishing

RRP: £86.40
Online price : £77.76
Save £8.64 (10%)

<https://www.bloomsburyprofessional.com/uk/public-procurement-and-aid-effectiveness-9781509922444/>