

06 March 2019
Future Food Newsletter: March

News

We are recruiting! The Future Proteins Platform is looking for two postdocs:
<https://www.nottingham.ac.uk/research/beacons-of-excellence/future-food/current-vacancies/index.aspx>

There are also PhD and MRes opportunities available!

Two postdoc posts are also open on the project: FARM WATCH: Fight AbR with Machine learning and a Wide Array of sensing TeCHnologies

Post One: <https://www.nottingham.ac.uk/jobs/currentvacancies/ref/MED069619>

Post Two: <https://www.nottingham.ac.uk/jobs/currentvacancies/ref/MED069319>

Dr Karen Salt chaired a meeting run by AHRC in Parliament, discussing how Parliament can better link to research in the Global South. There is a photo of the event here:

<https://twitter.com/UoNFutureFood/status/1101498187070750726>

Dr Levi Yant and colleagues had a paper published in Nature EcoEvo:

<https://www.nottingham.ac.uk/news/pressreleases/2019/mar/two-genomes-can-be-better-than-one-forevolutionary-adaptation-study-finds.aspx>

Blog Posts

We have lots of new blog posts up! Read them here: <http://blogs.nottingham.ac.uk/futurefood/>

Calls for Abstracts

Sustainable Food Systems//Sustainable Diets: <https://graduate.aur.edu/events/conference-sustainablefood-systems-sustainable-diets>

Future Food Symposium: <http://futurefoodsymposium.uk/> Call for abstracts is open until May 10th!

Beacon team members are organising a session at SEB Seville 2019, July 2-5th. Their session is titled: An extended plant phenotype: characterising plant-soil-microbiome interactions. The session is organised by Prof Malcolm Bennett, Prof David Salt, Dr Laurent Laplaze, and Dr Gabriel Castrillo. Details of the meeting: <https://www.sebiology.org/events/event/seb-seville-2019>

British Sociological Association Food Study Group call for papers extended until Friday March 8th: <https://www.britisoc.co.uk/events/key-bsa-events/bsa-food-study-group-2019-conference/>

University of Nottingham
Future Food

Exploring new ways of feeding the world

Find out how >