

NICEP

Nottingham Interdisciplinary Centre for Economic and Political Research

NICEP Conference 2023, Nottingham (UK), May 15-16, 2023
Call for Papers

We are pleased to announce that the Nottingham Interdisciplinary Centre for Economic and Political Research (NICEP) 2023 conference will be held at the University of Nottingham, UK on May 15-16, 2023.

NICEP promotes interdisciplinary research at the crossroads between Economics and Politics. Theoretical, empirical, and experimental papers related to the following areas are particularly welcome: representation, political behaviour, political economy, historical political economy, institutions, and public finance.

The conference will host plenary sessions with the following confirmed speakers: Torun Dewan (LSE), Michela Giorcelli (UCLA), Gilat Levy (LSE), Vincent Pons (Harvard Business School), and Alessandra Voena (Stanford).

The conference will be a medium size event (40-50 participants). For information on previous NICEP conferences, please see here. There will be a registration fee of £120, which will cover dinner and lunches. We can cover the fee for a limited number of participants, with priority for graduate students.

Submission Deadline: March 20, 2023

Submit your paper using this form.

Organising committee: Valeria Rueda; Daniel Seidmann; Cecilia Testa, and Dario Tortarolo.

Contact email: nicep@uniofnottm.onmicrosoft.com

Additional Information

Accepted speakers must cover for their travel and accommodation expenses. The East Midlands airport is Nottingham's local airport, with direct flights to many European destinations. Birmingham International airport and Luton Airport are also conveniently located (about 50 minutes from Nottingham). For travel via London, Nottingham has a direct and regular train connection to London St. Pancras International.

