

James Wilsdon is Professor of Research Policy at the Department of Politics and Director of Impact and Engagement for the Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Sheffield. James is also the Director of the Nexus Network, a £1.8m ESRC initiative to link research & policy across food, energy, water and the environment. Since 2013, he has been Chair of the Campaign for Social Science, and he led the working group for its 2015 report The Business of People. He chaired a review of the role of metrics in the management of the UK's research system, which published its final report The Metric Tide in July 2015. Building on this, he is leading an expert panel for the European Commission on the role of altmetrics and is on the advisory board of Scientists for EU.

Previously, he worked as Professor of Science and Democracy at SPRU, University of Sussex (2011-2015), Director of Science Policy at the Royal Society (2008-2011), Head of Science and Innovation at Demos (2001-2008), Senior Research Fellow at Lancaster University's Institute for Advanced Studies (2006-2008) and Senior Policy Adviser at Forum for the Future (1997-2001).

James contributes regularly to the media and is one of the editors of the Guardian's 'Political Science' blog on science and research policy and you can find him on twitter @jameswilsdon. In 2015, he was elected a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences.