The University of Nottingham’s offer

5. When you accept an offer of a place at the University of Nottingham, the University and you form a legally binding Contract. The University’s offer to you may contain specific conditions that you must meet before you can take up a place on a Programme at the University. If you meet the conditions of your offer you can complete Registration at the University in accordance with the University’s offer and the terms of this Contract.

Changes to Contract Information

12. Teaching of the Programmes at the University of Nottingham will be reviewed annually to take into account for example, desirable developments in subjects and Programmes. Sometimes the bodies that regulate the University (such as the Office for Students) require changes to be made by the University which in turn may require changes to a Programme. These types of changes may mean that certain modules may be added, revised or deleted in your chosen Programme. Changes may for example be made to take into account the most recent research developments, to be responsive to relevant changes in world events, for the maintenance of academic standards in higher education or to comply with legislative changes. These changes may occur during your period of study and the University will be entitled to make such reasonable changes. In the main these types of changes will not be significant and will not adversely affect you. The University will seek not to make significant changes which will have an adverse impact on your chosen Programme.
13. If as a consequence of circumstances beyond the reasonable control of the University, it is necessary to make significant changes to your Programme or to other related services and facilities after your acceptance of an offer, the University will tell you about these at the earliest opportunity. Such changes may occur either before or after your Registration, but the University will take account of the reasonable expectations of any student affected by the change. Examples of such circumstances include:
 - (a) changes imposed by professional, statutory and regulatory bodies
 - (b) industrial action by University staff or third parties
 - (c) the unanticipated departure of key members of University staff or significant staff illness or other unexpected absence where a Programme is reliant on a person's expertise

- (j) where the numbers recruited to a Programme are so low that it is not possible to deliver an appropriate quality of education for students enrolled on it, or it is not possible to offer a particular Programme module

In these circumstances, the University will take all reasonable and proportionate steps to minimise the resultant disruption to those services and to affected students, by, for example:

- offering the opportunity where reasonably possible to move to another programme
 - deferring the start date for the Programme;
 - offering the opportunity to defer entry to the programme to another academic year
 - delivering the Programme in a different way, from another location or online, or at another time;
 - delivering a modified version of the same Programme
 - assisting you to transfer to complete the Programme at another School location or another institution;
 - delivering other services and facilities in a different way, from a different location or online.
